CURB EXPORTS TO NEUTRALS WHO AID FOE

America Moves to Cut Supply Sent On to Germany.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—Germany is obtaining from Holland and the Scandinavian countries enough foodstuffs to ration Hindenburg's entire army of 2,500,000 men on the western front and enough fats to ration 7,700,000 soldiers.

Holland and the Scandinavian countries are able to feed the German army largely because of the food supplies they obtain for their own consumption from the United States.

These facts were made public tonight by Food Administrator Hoover as the basis for embargoes which the exports control commission is expected to impose upon the exportation of certain food supplies to the European neutrals unless they curtail the rationing of the German army.

MUST ENFORCE BLOCKADE.

"Obviously," the Hoover statement says, "strict enforcement of the blockade against the exports of [illegible] would necessarily result in elimination of the foodstuffs from Germany's diet."

"Their emergency need not in the least endanger the food supplies of Holland and Scandinavia for their own people."

The report continues:

"Dairymen imported oil cakes, etc., from the United States with which to operate their dairies, and the products of these were sold to Germany. Thus the importations of butter and cheese, while really derived from Danish dairies, were actually obtained from the United States.

EXACT MINIMUM KNOWN.

"The minimum amount of foodstuffs exported to Germany by Holland and the Scandinavian countries in 1916 has been definitely and authoritatively ascertained. It is probable that much more was exported. The minimum amounts of the chief articles exported to Germany were:

	Metric tons.		Metric tons.
Butter	30,000	Cheese	50,000
Meat	115,000	Eggs	66,000
Fort. products		Potato meal	170,000
Condensed milk	60,000	Coffee	50,000
Fish	70,000	Sugar	50,000

FAT MOST HIGHLY PRIZED.

The experts' report made to Mr. Hoover adds this analysis:

"When these substances are calculated for their food values and applied to their entire population, we learn that they contain for each individual in the German empire 130 calories per day, which is 6 per cent of the per capita diet, according to the regulation ration. In protein these importations furnish about 10 per cent of the intake.

"It is in fats in particular that the figures become impressive. It must be recalled that fat is the scarcest food in Germany.

"This amount of food is equal in fat to the fat in the soldiers' ration of 7,700,000 soldiers—practically the entire army of effectives in Germany. From the standpoint of calories, these foodstuffs are equal to the total rations of 2,500,000 soldiers, practically the German army, in actual service, on the west front.

ONLY TWO SOURCES LEFT.

"Inasmuch as importation of foodstuffs through Switzerland ceased when Italy entered the war, Holland, on the west, and Scandinavia, on the north, were the only countries from which these supplies could later be received. The figures of consular agents in Holland and Scandinavia confirm the statements of exportation from these lands into Germany of considerable amounts of foodstuffs of vital importance.

"In particular, it was pointed out that the Germans were especially active in importation of fats, the one type of foodstuff of which they had been most heavily deprived through the operation of the blockade.

"That Germany imported considerable amounts of these materials was well known to Americans residing in Germany prior to the declaration of war by the United States."

Monarchy Is Restored in China, Report

LONDON, July 2.—Gen. Chang Hsun, says a Reuter's Limited dispatch from Peking, has informed President Li Huan Hung that he must retire because the Manchu emperor, Hsuan Tung, has been restored to the throne.

Another Reuter's dispatch from Peking says that Hsuan Tung issued a mandate Saturday morning announcing his succession to the throne.

RUSSIANS OPEN OFFENSIVE ON A WIDE FRONT

Attacks on 18½ Mile Line Are Repelled, Berlin Says.

(By the Associated Press.)

The soldiers of new Russia have resumed the offensive. For the first time since the revolution last March Russian troops have begun an attack on an extensive scale.

Along a front of eighteen and one-half miles in the region of Brzezany, Galicia, Russian troops have stormed the German positions. Berlin says the Russians suffered heavy losses and were compelled to retire before the German fire.

The attack was made between the upper Strypa and the Narayuvka rivers, a tributary of the Gnila Lipa, in the section southeast of Lemberg, the Galician capital, where the artillery duing has been heavy recently.

Many Night Attacks Made.

The Russians also made night attacks on both sides of Brzezany and near Ewyszyp and Berlin reports that attacks between the Zlota Lipa and the Narayuvka have brought on new battles between the opposing forces.

The artillery arm of the Russian forces has been active and from the Berlin report it is learned that an intensive duel has been in progress from the region of Brzezany and Stanislau to as far northward as the Middle Stokhod in Volhynia, a distance of about 175 miles.

Urged On by Entente.

Berlin declares that the Russian attacks, which it says were powerful, were brought about through the pressure of the leading entente powers, the text of the official statement saying: "The Russian government having been constrained to yield to the pressure of the leading entente powers, part of the army has been induced to attack."

The region of the Narayuvka and upper Strypa rivers has been the scene of much bitter fighting since Gen. Brusiloff ended his victorious campaign last year, and Brzezany is one of the keys to Lemberg.

SHOOT POLICE IN RIOT RENEWAL

East St. Louis, Ill., July 2.—Three patrolmen were shot, one of them seriously, when an automobile in which they were answering a riot call from Sixteenth street and Boissenneau avenue was fired on by a crowd of Negroes.

MOVIE AGENTS RECEIVE UNION THREAT NOTES

Blaze in Consumers' Building Starts in Pathe Office.

A triple investigation by the state's attorney, the police, and the fire attorney was begun yesterday into the fire which started from an unexplained cause in the vaults of the Pathe Film company in the Consumers' building early yesterday and occasioned a loss estimated at $750,000.

The fire is believed by the film company managers and the investigating officials to have been the first step in a war declared against the film companies by labor unions to enforce the unionization of film company employes.

EXAMINER WRECKED OFFICE.

Assistant State's Attorney Nicholas Michaels, First Deputy of Police Westbrook, and C. W. Bunn, Chicago manager of the Pathe company, made a personal examination of the wrecked offices on the fourth floor of the Consumers' building.

"Taken in connection with threats that have been sent to me and to other film managers," said Mr. Bunn, "I am convinced the fire was of incendiary origin. Four employes were at work in the office. They heard a noise in the vault, as if something had fallen. An explosion followed and the vault door was blown out with a blast of smoke and flame. The falling noise probably was the working of a time mechanism that touched off a bomb."

POLICE GUARD AGENCIES.

Policemen were stationed last night at the offices of sixteen film companies, some of them among the largest in the United States, to guard against possible attacks from union men. In the vaults of these companies reel dramas valued at several million dollars are stored.

Manager of the film exchanges, accompanied by Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson, held a conference with First Deputy Westbrook in the city hall in the afternoon. The threats of the labor men were laid before the first deputy. It was said that the theatrical, stage employes, and motion picture operators' unions had sent word to the managers that they would take drastic steps unless the film inspectors and packers, mostly girls, were unionized at once and certain discharged employes reinstated.

LETTER FROM UNION MAN.

A letter received by all the film company managers was shown. It was signed by Joseph P. Armstrong, president of local No. 187. A copy was turned over to Assistant State's Attorney Michaels.

"Get busy and organize," the letter read. "Start at once or we will start our work."

Mr. Bunn said he was visited last week by a committee of three from the unions, including President Armstrong.

"They wanted permission to talk to our inspectors and packers," Mr. Bunn said. "I refused this, and when they left one of them remarked, 'A stick of dynamite would do some good here.'"

The threats of the unions, it was said, were laid before Assistant State's Attorney Michaels two weeks ago. Mr. Michaels called Armstrong before him.

MRS. GRAHAM GIVES ESTATE TO PAY BANK DEBTS

Offers Nearly Million Realty to Protect Depositors.

Mrs. Minnie P. Graham, widow of Andrew J. Graham, has come to the rescue of her sons and has turned over to the bank which closed its doors last Friday all the property left to her by her husband. This includes all the real estate owned by Graham at his death, amounting to between $800,000 and $1,000,000.

Saturday morning, soon after Ryan & Condon had been appointed attorneys for the receiver, Mrs. Graham went to their office and signed a declaration of trust in which she made the formal statement that all of the property belonged to the bank and that she had merely been holding title as a matter of legal form.

Helps Clear Tangle.

This action by Mrs. Graham was preceded by an animated discussion between attorneys representing the different interests involved in the failure of the bank, during which the point had been raised as to how the depositors could have any rights to the real estate as long as Mrs. Graham held personal title to the property, especially as the time during which claims could be filed against the estate of A. J. Graham had expired.

Henry S. Blum, representing some of the depositors, asserted that as the estate of A. J. Graham had been closed in the Probate court June 9 and that as the failure had come twenty days later the [illegible] Incidents of the fact that the closing of the bank had been delayed until a time when no more claims could be filed that would protect the rights of the depositors to the property left by Graham.

"During his life Andrew J. Graham held title to this real estate, for the reason that the bank could not hold it," said James G. Condon yesterday. "It was necessary for some individual to act as trustee. When Mr. Graham died title to all of this property passed to Mrs. Graham.

Declaration Signed.

"Soon after our firm was appointed to represent the receiver Mrs. Graham signed the declaration of trust in which she makes legal acknowledgment that this property, or any other property to which she holds title, belongs to the bank and is to be used as an asset for the benefit of the depositors.

"Every dollar that A. J. Graham had will go into the assets of the bank, regardless of the expiration of the time during which claims could have been filed against the estate. Mr. Graham never regarded these holdings as personal, and Mrs. Graham does not so regard them."

Serious Fight Avoided.

Before Mrs. Graham's action became known last night a man who expected to have a prominent part in the untangling of the bank's affairs and who made plain his reasons why his name could not be used, said:

"There isn't any doubt in the world but there's a chance for one of the biggest pieces of litigation in the history of the United States courts.

"The situation is without parallel. It is bristling with law points. Undoubtedly it will go to the Supreme court of the United States if Mrs. Graham claims the estate. There are numberless intricate questions.

"It is likely that persons will appear to claim that she was in reality the banker. Her attorneys may claim that she had nothing to do with the bank and that anything she has is absolutely hers, free from the claim of individuals.

Legal Limit Passed.

"Andy Graham was a private banker, and no one filed claim against his estate within one year, as the law demands. Under the law the estate went to his widow free of all claims.

"It won't be one day—it'll be weeks, months, years of litigation if she fights."

"That is all a matter for the courts, not for me.

"The receiver is merely the arm of the court, and acts under its direction. It will do its best to carry out all the instructions of the court."

Three members of the Graham family are expected to tell today how and why the Graham & Sons private bank was closed. They will appear this morning at 9:30 o'clock before Frank L. Wean, referee in bankruptcy, under court order.

The three are Mrs. Minnie P. Graham, widow of "Andy" Graham, founder of the bank, and her two sons, Frank J. Graham and Ralph R. Graham.

THE FOURTH OF JULY ORATION WILL HAVE A NEW NOTE THIS YEAR.

The Old Fashioned Fourth of July Address.

"We are gathered here today to celebrate the national day of the great and glorious nation's independence and to do honor to the flag which has never yet and never will be vanished by defeat. We come to do honor to the brave spirits of our forefathers whose devotion, suffering and sacrifices have given us the great heritage of independence. O, could these sturdy forefathers see us today, rich, powerful, glorious, the greatest nation of the world, the home of the brave and the land of the free."

The Fourth of July Oration of This Year.

"The hour has come when you must make good your claim to national greatness. You must prove in a fiery test that you deserve the independence you have enjoyed so long. You must be prepared to fight for it, sacrifice for it, suffer for it, and die for it. It is by no means sure our form of government will survive. It certainly will not, if you are not willing to fight for it. It is a time for action and if you are not willing to act, then you do not deserve your independence."

6 Bullets End U-Boat Base Off Irish Coast

An Atlantic Port, July 1.—Six bullets ended a German submarine base twelve miles off the coast of Ireland.

The six bullets also ended the lives of six men who were ringleaders in supplying the kaiser's U-boats with oil, provisions, and probably information concerning the movements of ships of the allies.

The executions took place on Tory Island, where the submarine base was discovered two weeks ago, according to information brought to this port today by officers of an American steamship.

PERSHING WIPES TRAITOR STIGMA OFF U. S. WRITERS

Held Blameless for Premature News on Landing.

Remarkable new picture of the landing of the first American troops on French soil, painted by Floyd Gibbons, will be found on page 2.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, July 1.—Gen. John J. Pershing, commander in chief of all American troops on the continent, returned to Paris this morning after a two days' inspection of the first United States troops encamped at a French sea base.

Statement by Pershing.

The general received the American correspondents and made this statement:

"I wish to compliment you gentlemen for being on the level by recognizing that America's interests are greater than the interests of the papers you represent. By some means, which the intelligence department has under investigation, one report of the landing of our troops was made public before the landing was completed, thereby endangering the lives of the men still at sea on transports.

Clears U. S. Correspondents.

"I am glad to say that report did not emanate from an American correspondent. Fortunately, no harm resulted, but much could have resulted. I do not believe the American public will condemn you gentlemen for you have shown patriotism and common sense. The landing was effected with unusual facility."

With regard to the widespread premature publication of the landing report, other United States officers use less reserve in their expressions of condemnation, some of them suggesting execution for the persons responsible.

Investigation of the matter promises to be thorough, and the punishment drastic if criminal evasion of the censorship is established.

THE WAR

ABROAD.

Russians open offensive on eighteen and one-half mile front in vicinity of Lemberg, Berlin reports. All attempts to advance broken down.

French and Germans Stage hot battle west of Dead Man Hill. Position changes hands five times and finally is abandoned. Paris reports repulse of foe at Avocourt. Berlin reports repulse of all French attacks.

London reports Gen. Haig continues to make progress in encirclements of Lens. British take enemy defenses on half mile front. Berlin says attacks were repulsed.

AMERICAN SHIP ROUTS U-BOATS; ONE DESTROYED?

LONDON, July 1.—The gun crew of an American liner fired on two German submarines during a recent voyage from the United States to England. Both targets were at a considerable range, but the report to Washington of the commanding officer will express the belief that one periscope was shattered.

A third submarine was sighted, but at a great distance, and it submerged immediately.

The passengers expressed the greatest admiration for the marksmanship of the American gunners as shown both in practice and against the enemy. One member of the crew of the liner was formerly a gunner in the British navy.

FRENCH STEAMER SINKS; 28 DIE

PARIS, July 1.—The French steamer Himalaya, of the Messageries Maritimes, with 250 passengers and crew, has been sunk as the result of an explosion in the Mediterranean. One hundred and seventeen persons were saved.

CAR PLUNGES INTO RIVER; MANY MISSING

Soldiers Face Peril of Whirlpool to Aid Victims.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 1.—[Special.]—A Niagara Gorge route car, crowded with sightseers, plunged into the river in the upper rapids of the Whirlpool Rapids this afternoon.

Thirteen bodies have been recovered. A soldier who saw the accident says he saw at least six persons carried down the river into the maelstrom below. Late tonight police and national guard officers placed the number of known dead at twenty-eight, and the known injured thirty-nine.

In opposition to this R. R. Nickle, superintendent of the Gorge railroad, issued a statement placing the number of dead and missing at fourteen. All the other passengers on the car had been accounted for, he said.

SUMMER KILLED UNDERTAKER.

The exact number killed may never be known. The ambulance in charge of the car was killed and the motorman says there were nearly sixty on board at the time of the accident. The statistics of the rescue corps are more than sixty were aboard the car.

Henry Summer, undertaker, 1013 Curtis street, Niagara Falls, N. Y., was one of those instantly killed. His body was recovered.

Among those killed was Miss Bessie M. Raftery, 1723 Leland avenue, Chicago. She was the private secretary to President Mathews of the Wilson railroad. Another Chicago victim was Frank Stanislaki, 1013 Curtis street. He escaped with serious injuries.

SPOON RESCUES HIS BRIDE.

There were numerous heroic rescues. In one of them the hero and heroine were Dr. G. Sims and his wife of Toledo, O. The couple were on their honeymoon. When the car plunged into the river Mrs. Sims was thrown far out into the stream. Her husband, an expert swimmer, helped by a fall on the rocks in the river bed, plunged into the rapids and swam ashore with her.

Other men among the passengers dragged the injured from the water close to the shore or from the rocks and the wreckage of the car to which they were clinging.

In several cases these rescue efforts failed when the victims in the stream were torn loose by the pull of the rapids from their hold on the wreckage of the car or from the hands of the would-be rescuers and carried down by the current into the breakers below.

CAUGHT BY WASHOUT.

A washout was the cause of the disaster. The car had left Niagara Falls and looped the loop, starting back from Lewiston. It had made the six mile trip up the river past the whirlpool and to a point almost under the cantilever bridge.

It was speeding along twenty feet above the water level to the place where it was to begin the long ascent to the top of the gorge, on the American side.

Suddenly the right hand rail gave way and the car slid over toward the river. Then it plunged down, turning completely over twice and landing upside down in ten feet of water.

OPEN CAR SAVES SOME.

Some of the passengers owe their lives to the fact the car was an open one. The seats are crosswise, and those at either end of each divan were able to jump or were thrown clear of the car as it rolled down.

It was only a few seconds from the time the car left the track until it landed in the river bottom.

There were soldiers at each end of the cantilever bridge above, there on war duty to prevent damage by any political enemy. At the far end were the Canadian troops, at the near end American soldiers. They hastened to the rescue, but in many cases were too late, as they had to make their way down into the great gorge from the top.

GATHERED TO THE WHIRLPOOL.

"I believe at least half a dozen persons were carried down the river to the whirlpool," said one of the soldiers who was taken to a hospital to recover from exhaustion from his efforts of rescue. "When I was running down the railroad tracks I saw out in the stream what seemed to me to be two arms raised above the surface. Ten feet away from them I am sure I saw the bright color of a woman's dress near the surface, and still further down a man was swimming in an effort to get out of the rapids. He disappeared."

One of the first to join the rescue work was D. A. Sanson of Niagara Falls, Ont. He was crossing the steel arch bridge when he saw the car slide into the river. He rushed down to the river shore by ladder and assisted some soldiers in pulling a young woman out of the wreckage.

Crawl to Safety.

Some of the passengers who were injured or slightly hurt managed to crawl out of the water and to safety before the rescue party arrived. A number of others managed to keep themselves from drowning or being carried away by the rushing water by clinging to the overturned car and keeping their heads above water until the rescuers arrived.

The rescuers worked in the swift current with the water almost reaching their chins.

Ropes were thrown to those who had scrambled on the rocks in the river bed, and a number were saved in this way.

To prevent the car from being swept away or twisted out into the center of the stream huge ropes were thrown over the truck ends and the car was secured to the abutments of the bridge.

Soldiers and Firemen Heroes.

Soldiers and firemen risked their lives to climb out on the car and cut holes in the top through which the bodies first recovered were taken out as rapidly as they can be discovered.

Extra soldiers were rushed to both ends of the bridge to restrain the enormous mob which sought to obtain a look at the spectacle. The embankments of the gorge for half a mile in both directions, on both sides of the river, are black with people. No one without a military passport or known to have business at the scene is being permitted to approach.

Conductor Alock Heron was in the forward part of the car collecting the last of the fares. He was crushed to death as the car toppled over. The motorman, when his efforts failed to stop the plunging car, leaped from the platform and escaped.

Soldiers Work Desperately.

The soldiers were in the water at the side of the wrecked car for more than two hours with the water up to their waists. The injured were hoisted up the 30 foot embankment with ropes.

Private Joseph Crowley saved the lives of two girls by holding their heads above water while others worked to free their bodies from the wreckage. The girls gave their names as Clara Schultz and Lillian Coot of Cleveland.

Crowley, who was on duty at the bridge, saw the car go over the bank. "There was a scream that raised my hair on end," he said. "The bank kept going down and in a moment the trolley car disappeared. I heard women cry and as I ran forward I saw the car bottomside up in the water."

Inquiry Into Accident Begins.

An inquiry has been started into the cause of the accident by both the coroner and District Attorney J. William O'Brien. This is the result of charges by some of the soldiers that their warnings were ignored. Sergt. Rogers of company H, Seventy-fourth N. Y. N. G., is reported to have seen the washout, and it is alleged that fifteen minutes before the car came along he telephoned to the Gorge road office notifying them of the danger. Another report says Officer Kennedy, stationed on the upper bridge, telephoned the Gorge office at least a half hour before the accident that there was trouble on the line.

Other soldiers, it is reported, tried to stop the car by telephoning to Lewiston and other points down the gorge, but they learned the car already had departed.

Motorman Crandall, 1037 Main street, gives the first connected version of the accident.

Crandall says he was going along at the usual rate of speed when he suddenly felt the car sink beneath him. Realizing the imminent danger, he and two men who stood on the platform with him jumped for their lives. They managed to get clear of the car. The three men climbed down the bank to give what aid they could to those who managed to get out of the car. They hauled twenty-two persons to the bank. One of these, a woman, expired just as she was placed on the shore.

Crandall says that he noticed the register just before the car made the plunge, and saw that sixty-five fares had been rung up. He believes that this was about the number of people in the car.

No Visiting Rabbis on Car.

No members of the central conference of American rabbis which is meeting in Buffalo were in the accident. The conference, which has been on several days, is being attended by most of the reformed rabbis of the country, seventy in all.

Word Picture of Landing of First U. S. Troops in France; Get Hearty Welcome Except from German Prisoners

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

(Special Cable to Chicago Tribune.)

BASE OF AMERICAN TROOPS IN FRANCE, June 28.—[Delayed.]—The first contingent of the American expeditionary forces has disembarked in France. Under the protection of United States naval forces the historic army of American soldiers—the first thousands of many thousands to come—arrived here safely, if not entirely without incident, as reports from the navy may reveal, to the great credit of that branch of the service.

For three days an endless belt of rifle bristling khaki ran down the gangways from the gray transports to the quay of a seaport town which history has marked with the same pen that recorded the arrival of a similar band of liberty inspired fighting men on a distant wall known shore more than a century ago.

The successive decks of the grim looking transports were packed with uniformed humanity. Each deck had a khaki colored band stripping the ship from bow to stern, and each stripe was superimposed by a layer of healthy, tanned faces.

Surprise by Expected Troops.

The coming of the men from across the sea was expected by the inhabitants of the disembarkation base who were not unmindful of arrangements for housing the American troops. Nevertheless the actual landing—due to staff secrecy—came as a surprise, which found the sleepy little hamlet unprepared to show the warm hospitality which it feels unreservedly toward these friendly strangers from the west who come to fight side by side with their sons, husbands, and fathers.

The arrival was without notice. The night before darkness had fallen over the trim harbor, with its scrupulously white toy lighthouse, and the sun, sinking out in the flatness of the ocean, silhouetted only the spars of fishing boats and peacetime craft.

The town went to sleep that night the same as it has done for centuries. With the next morning came the news that popped shutters open with a clash, caused awnings to unfold, flags to appear, made the shop windows more attractive and put an extra polish on the little marbled topped tables of the sidewalk cafés.

Big Strangers in Harbor.

Fishermen on the quay pointed out into the harbor, where the half light veiled the hulk of a strange gray ship that had come in in the night. Its outlines were unfamiliar to the villagers. In place of four masts it had a tall, funnellike framework that resembled field baskets in which the peasants gather lettuce and carrots. From its drab decks projected long, menacing tubes. It was silent and grim and betrayed by no token the purport of its presence.

The water mist dissipated as the morning sun rose, over the red tiled gables and thatched roofs. A splash of color took life in the breeze from the after mast. It unfurled gloriously, revealing "broad stripes and bright stars," bringing unconsciously to many an alien town the unheard words of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Busy Scene in Harbor.

The gross bulk of the transports—the first of the convoy—lay safely within the haven. The ensign of Rear Admiral Gleaves fluttered from the mastehead of the flagship. Launches began chugging from one ship to another, while energetic jackies on the bridges snapped signal flags at arm length, angles as orders flew back and forth from one unit of the flotilla to another. Tugs moved out from the shore. The hurriedly dressed villagers ranged along the quay moving about with the clatter of their wooden sabots talking excitedly with mouth, eyes and hands.

"C'est les Americians." "Vive L'Amerique," could be heard from the babble that rose from groups of old men in soiled white smocks and hastily garbed women donning lace white headgears. From across the water came the sound of the familiar "Barber of Seville" as Negro stevedores in the forecastles tuned up with melodies that made the waiting exiles from homeland grow warm inside and cold outside. Back of the town, the sun beamed on yellow wheatfields and clover purpled meadows rolling to the horizon.

Warp Ships to Landings.

While the town dignitaries rushed through the streets trying to assemble a much depleted orchestra with which to greet the transatlantic allies, industriously puffing tugs were warping the troop ships into landing positions. A regimental band, gathered on one foredeck, broke loose with "Au Directoire" and followed with "The Marsellaise," which brought a flutter of hands to the hat brims of the crowded decks. Again the big horns rumbled out the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," while troopers stood at tense salute.

As the last bar was finished and while the ship still was fifty feet from the quayside, a soldier leaned over the railing, and, cupping his hands about his lips, shouted this serious request for information:

"Say, do they let enlisted men into saloons here?"

The general commanding was received at the gang plank by United States landing officers who were waiting to facilitate the landing.

All Get Acquainted.

During the courteous interchange American soldiers were exchanging salutations and getting acquainted with the French. The Americans threw pennies and nickels to the gamins on the quay, while old men and women, some of them with aprons full of fruit, tossed back apricots, pears and small bags of luscious red cherries to the boys in khaki.

The Mexican border veterans attempted communications with made-over Spanish, learning Frenchman is not an "hombre" and does not answer to "senor" or "amigo."

"How's chow here?" shouted one soldier to a French comrade at arms patrolling the dock.

"Well, anyhow, it's better than Texas," replied the man interested in food.

German Captives Gaze.

The most curious spectators on shore were fifty or sixty German prisoners, still wearing the soiled uniforms of the fatherland. They watched the landing with solemn interest. Sometimes they smiled and passed comments among themselves, but for the most part their observations were silently retrospective.

Maybe it reminded them of the distant days, almost three years ago, when they marched away in high hopes to the great war. They were supposed to be working, according to the French centries guarding them. The civilian foreman of the job was still away trying to gather a loofi orchestra, so there was nothing to do but let the prisoners stand there and watch the proceedings.

"Some tough looking guns," was the truthful comment from Americans who landed and marched by the prisoners.

"Looks like we are being gut on review for the benefit of the bochs," said an old first sergeant.

Prisoners Like Dead Men.

Later in the day when the prisoners began the work of loading from rails on flat cars, the Americans commented on their slowness, which, indeed, is worthy of comment. The prisoners walked more like dead men and every effort bespoke the realization on the part of the maker that every effort, no matter how small, was being directed against his less fortunate countrymen in the trenches up north.

While the men were landing, Negro stevedores, thicker than flies, hustled the equipment from the holds, while dock darricks swung huge net loads of paraphernalia overhead. Companies formed on the quay and marched through the town to the seawall overlooking a pretty bay around which runs the road to the camp. Bands played at the heads of columns as they marched through the bright white streets, while girls waved to them from balcony windows and from the sparsely filled sidewalks individual vivats rattled. French officers stood at salute.

The road lay over a rolling hill and back from the bay, passing between the ancient walls of plastered stone over the top of which peeped orchard jewels of red and green luciousness that caused many a one among the marchers to mark well the location and make a mental reservation.

At camp more German prisoners watched the army cooks preparing meals and observed that the food was better than the French rations. I heard a hissing guttural of German tongue and was surprised to see one of our privates of marines talking with a German prisoner whose front teeth were missing. Here is the conversation translated:

"Well, what do you think of us?" the marine asked.

"It doesn't matter. The war will be over before you get started," the German replied.

"How do you figure that?" the marine asked.

"Submarines will do it," was the German's reply.

"Well, how do you think we got here—flew?" the marine countered.

"Well, you'll find it won't be the same as in Mexico," the German said.

"You are finding it out that it isn't the same now as it was in 1814 for you fellows," the marine flung back.

A French sentry interrupted the conversation with a peremptory command. I learned from the marine that his name is Arthur Fistler; that his home is in Sheboygan, Wis.; that his mother and father both were born in Germany, and that he has five brothers in the United States army and navy.

U. S. Troops Rule Town.

Although French authorities still rule the town, it has been figuratively taken over by the American soldiers, sailors, and marines, who crowd the streets and cafes. Liberty men, on four days' leave, took the night train for Paris and arm in arm with French soldiers, returning from leave, sang through the night long trip without regard to differences in key, song, or language.

The championship contests in baseball and crapshooting are on between the soldiers and sailors. Any café table is big enough to stage one of the latter.

The American Negroes in the stevedore corps are rather contemptuous of their French brothers of color. One patriot from the Baltimore levees told me he was surprised at their ignorance. "I spoke to him in plain United States and he talked back in some awful kind of stuff they teach them in Africa. It is a powerful bad affliction to grow up that way," he told me.

Symbol of Identification.

One common symbol of service in both our army and navy has been accepted as distinctive by the French peasants. It is a little black and white paper tag that hangs by a piece of yellow string from the left hand breast pocket of the service shirt or the navy jacket.

This identifies the bearer as possessor of a sack of a well known tobacco brand and has been interpreted as uniform equipment.

American Help to Allies Real, German Editor Says

ZURICH, July 1.—Referring to the arrival of American troops on French soil, the military critic of the Frankfurter Zeitung says that Germany must not overlook the fact that American help is really very great, though it will come only by degrees.

Under these conditions, he says, if France is obliged to restrict her military activities, it will signify no strengthening of the German situation.

The critic thinks that extents plans for a greater offensive will be delayed and perhaps will not be carried out until the spring of 1918. Hence, he writes, there is greater opportunity for the central powers to take the initiative.

HAIL U. S. TROOPS IN FRENCH PRESS; ONLY A STARTER

PARIS, June 30.—[Delayed.]—The French press and public have extended an enthusiastic greeting to the American troops, the announcement of whose landing was permitted for the first time tonight. All the newspapers give a place of honor to descriptions of the impressive sight as the long lines of transports entered a French port and debarked the American forces.

The Journal des Debats, in an editorial, says: "The grand democracy of the new world does nothing by halves. It entered this vast conflict in full consciousness of the ends to be attained and with full resolution to neglect nothing in attaining those ends. What we witness today in the arrival of the Americans on French soil is magnificent proof of this fact.

"Those who have been doubtful whether the American concourse would come in time have failed to estimate at its just value the tremendous moral and material American power that German brutality has mobilized against itself. And what we see today is only the commencement."

ROOT REPORTS GOOD SUCCESS OF U. S. MISSION

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—The White House has received two cablegrams from Elihu Root reporting the progress which has been made by the American commission in Russia.

While it is impossible to give the details, there are reasons for believing that the administration is well satisfied with the success which has attended Mr. Root's efforts.

The first report indicated that the activities of the German agents, working under various guises, had managed to undermine the commission's plans, at least to the extent of causing some of the Russian leaders to receive them coldly.

Appeal by Labor Leader.

PETROGRAD, June 28.—[Delayed.]—James Duncan, labor member of the United States commission to Russia, held the attention of the council of workingmen and soldiers for more than an hour tonight while he explained how America had met its labor problems in the last decade, and begged the Russian deputies to benefit by the experience and mistakes of the United States. Organized workers of America, he said, might be of service to the working people of Russia in helping them to develop practical trades unions.

One Objector Downed.

The speaker was interrupted by a sailor, who shouted that America was a nation of capitalists, but he was promptly hooted down by the rest of the council.

Replying to Mr. Duncan, President N. C. Tcheidse of the council said that if America agreed with Russia in its democratic aims, including a speedy conclusion of the war—and the utterances of President Wilson indicated that they were in full sympathy—he extended the heartiest greeting to the American delegate and would earnestly welcome America's assistance.

July 4 Banquet for Pershing.

PARIS, June 30.—Premier Ribot, all the ministers and the undersecretaries of state, Marshal Joffre, and Maj. Gen. Pershing will attend a Fourth of July banquet at the American chamber of commerce. Among the speakers will be M. Ribot and Brand Whitlock, American minister to Belgium.

CURB ON PRICES LIKELY TO SPLIT NATION'S RULERS

Clash in Cabinet Started by Coal Report; More Trouble Ahead.

Washington, D. C., July 1.—Official Washington awakened today to the possibilities of trouble in Secretary Baker's amendment of the coal price fixing arrangement secured by Secretary Lane from the coal production committee of the council of national defense by which operators east of the Mississippi river agreed to cut their mine prices today from $1 to $3 per ton.

So far there is no indication that the issue has become acute or that there will be a split in the cabinet which the president has kept with few changes for four years and a half, but Mr. Baker's public criticism of his colleague's course and his admonition to the coal committee that it had exceeded its powers is regarded as certain to be discussed at length when the president meets his official family on Tuesday.

Defense Council Involved.

In the opinion of many officials the question may involve the entire makeup of the council of national defense and its subordinate civilian committees of business men, and echoes may be heard in legislation from congress. Some believe that general price fixing by the government under law is not an impossibility as a result.

The situation has brought to the front again reports of wide differences among cabinet members and other government officials as to a war purchasing policy.

One element, said to include most of the membership of the defense council's committees, is for a purchasing policy that will allow liberal profits to producers to stimulate production. These officials declare the government will obtain far better service if the government does not try to drive its bargains too hard.

They point to the coal price agreement as the proper way to arrive at buying arrangements, particularly because, through this plan, the general public as well as the government enjoys the low prices obtained.

Some Favor Commandeering.

Other officials believe the government should bring every pressure to bear to obtain the lowest possible prices, and some, it is said, are for commandeering supplies. No government agency now has the power to fix prices either for the government or for the general public.

In making the arrangement with the coal men the interior department pointed out that it would mean, if it stood for a year, a saving of nearly $200,000,000 to the consuming industries and the public.

Those in authority who have not approved the action of Secretary Lane are understood to feel that the only way such a price fixing plan can work equitably for the government is first to have the cost of production ascertained by some capable government agency, probably the federal trade commission, and base prices on these costs.

FORMER JUSTICE MOODY IS DEAD; WAS IN CABINET

Haverhill, Mass., July 2, 1:20 a. m.—William H. Moody, former associate justice of the United States Supreme court, died at his home here at 1 a. m. today.

He had represented a Massachusetts district in congress for seven years prior to 1902, when President Roosevelt made him secretary of the navy, succeeding John D. Long. He was the youngest member of the cabinet at the time, but two years later, when President Roosevelt transferred him to the post of attorney general, he made himself known throughout the country. Under his supervision the anti-trust campaign of the Roosevelt administration was mapped out. The proceeding to dissolve the Standard Oil corporation was largely evolved by him.

SENATE MAY TRY TO SAVE WHISKY NOW IN STOCK

Drys Up in Arms Over Move Against Commandeering.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—Although beer and wine have been saved to their consumers and whisky alone is doomed, there is another row of goodly proportions brewing over the wartime prohibition provisions of the food control bill pending in the senate.

The administration leaders have decided to attempt the elimination from the measure of the provision authorizing the president to commandeer the existing stock of whisky for redistillation into alcohol for use in the manufacture of munitions of war.

The Anti-Saloon league is up in arms over this move.

Enough Now to Last Four Years.

"If this provision should be eliminated," the Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie said tonight, "we will ask that the whole prohibition section be eliminated. There is enough whisky now in bonded warehouses to last four years at the rate of consumption that has prevailed. If it is commandeered and made into alcohol for war munitions the country will benefit not only by the enforced abstinence from whisky but by the saving in foodstuffs which otherwise would be used to make the alcohol the government needs for war purposes."

The liquor interests are moving for an investigation by congress of the Anti-Saloon league on charges of lobbying. They charge that Standard Oil largely finances the organization.

Dr. Dinwiddie said that the league would welcome any investigation.

Decide on Amendment Today.

Tomorrow the senate committee will decide which prohibition amendment it will indorse—that of Senator Chamberlain prohibiting the manufacture of whisky and other distilled spirits from foodstuffs, but not mentioning beer, wine, and other liquors, or that of Senator Gore prohibiting whisky and authorizing the president to prohibit beer, wine, and other liquors if he deems such action necessary to the conservation of food.

Beer and Wine Must Go, Too, Chicago Pastors Insist

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

While loath to criticise President Wilson in a time of war for his appeal to the leaders of the dry forces to consent to the manufacture of beer and wine, Chicago ministers and dry leaders were unyielding yesterday in their stand that the prohibition of wine and beer are necessary for the successful prosecution of the war.

The Rev. L. P. Cain, pastor of the Edgewater Presbyterian church, refused to be a party to any compromise, and, after addressing his congregation on the subject, sent President Wilson the following telegram:

"No indulgence for the noncombatant not permitted the fighter. Abolish wine and beer."

"The law makes it a crime to sell to a man in uniform wine or beer." Dr. Cain said in his sermon, "and yet allows the men who stay at home indulgence in both."

McBride's Views.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Illinois Anti-Saloon league, who returned from Washington yesterday, declared there is no intention on the part of the dry leaders to give up the fight for the elimination of beer and wine.

"The prohibition of the manufacture of whisky will help in the conservation of the food supply, but it will not help in the conservation of the manhood of the nation, which is the important thing," he said.

"The bill as it went through the lower house and as proposed in the senate has been spoken of as a bone-dry law, but this is not true. It prohibits the manufacture during the war but does not prohibit the sale. As long as there is enough whisky in bond to last for three or four years there will be as much drinking as ever and the distillers will get the benefit, for they probably will raise their prices.

"We concede to President Wilson the right to advocate such measures as he thinks best for the nation; we reserve the right to secure such legislation as congress will give us. I found the dry leaders in Washington asking why President Wilson appealed to them to compromise and yield instead of appealing to the wet leaders to be patriotic for the good of the country."

Church Editor's View.

The Rev. E. Robb Zaring, editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, said: "It would be a serious blunder on the part of temperance forces to compromise their position at this time. The same argument that prohibits the manufacture of whisky from grain would demand the prohibition likewise of beer."

Oliver E. Williamson, publisher of the Continent, said: "We do not want prohibition enacted unless the nation wants it. But the nation does want it, and we do not propose that it shall be prevented from having prohibition by the brewers and others who profit financially by perpetuating the saloon. If from patriotic interest the representatives of the people who believe that all intoxicants should be prohibited during the war agree now to a halfway measure the brewing interests will have secured only a temporary exemption. Their fate is inevitable and their holding a stub over congress at this time of emergency will only make their day of reckoning more certain."

Prof. Herbert L. Willett, president of the Church Federation council, said: "Those who believe in sober and orderly citizenship have reason to be grateful that President Wilson has announced his advocacy of the law prohibiting the manufacture of distilled liquors during the war. This is a notable step forward in the progress toward a saloonless nation."

HASH HABIT WILL HELP US WIN WAR, PASTORS ARGUE

In response to an appeal from Herbert C. Hoover to 200,000 pastors, many preached against waste and in favor of household economy.

The Sunday schools in response to an appeal from the International Sunday School association backed by a letter from President Wilson and the proclamation of the governors of a dozen states, made offerings for the Red Cross and honored the soldiers of past wars and of the present war.

There were several flag raisings and in many churches a room was set apart for the enrolling of recruits.

"The farmer cannot win the war without the cooperation of the city dweller," said the Rev. George Mackaim, pastor of the Epworth Methodist Episcopal church. "If the war will bring us back to the frugality and sanity of the days of '76 it will be no small compensation. Conservation of food must go farther than the kitchen; it must go to the dining room. The hope of democracy in America is that it will prove itself capable of self control."

"Excessive eating, drinking, and smoking must stop in the nation if we would win the war," said the Rev. H. B. Gwyn, rector of the Holy Comforter Protestant Episcopal church, Kenilworth.

American Ship Owners Unite Against Submarine

New York, July 1.—Organization has been completed of the Submarine Defense association, composed of the leading ship owners, shippers and underwriters in the United States, it was announced here tonight. The purpose of the association is to cooperate with the government in seeking devices for the protection of merchant ships against attacks by submarines.

CHEESE BOARDS SUSPECTED IN U. S. FOOD QUIZ

When an investigator from the Chicago office of the United States department of justice appeared in the central cheese making district of Wisconsin last week, a federal investigation of an alleged price fixing system was forecast. This investigator visited the cheese boards at Plymouth and Sheboygan.

It is claimed that these districts are producing 200 cars a week, of 30,000 pounds and will be until September. It is further alleged that the price is made by offering small lots.

By this means the price is kept up, it is charged. The belief is that the government plans to compel the placing of the entire supply on the market or force the closing of the boards.

One of the largest buyers yesterday predicted that the next department of agriculture report, which will be out in a few days based on the holdings of eggs on July 1, will show 5,000,000 more cases of eggs held than on July 1, 1916.

He added that a number of the Wisconsin cheese factories have turned to the making of butter, fearing that if they put their entire milk supply into cheese they would break the market seriously.

Dealers predict a further slump in potatoes within the next week or ten days.

SPARE STEEL IF POSSIBLE

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States tonight sounded a warning to business men that steel is needed for war purposes in the construction of ships, railroad cars and locomotives, trucks and containers and should be used for general business purposes only when the requirement is unavoidable.

STORAGE OF FOOD IN CITY PLANTS REDUCED BY HALF

Foods in cold storage in Chicago plants have shown a remarkable decrease in the last quarterly report as of May 1 against the report of January. In January the cold storage plants contained nearly 68,000,000 pounds of meats; in May a little more than 44,000,000 pounds, according to figures presented in the weekly bulletin of the health department.

Butter storage has decreased 50.3 per cent; fish, 70 per cent; poultry, something over 3 per cent, while the storage of eggs has increased greatly.

The Chicago death rate has increased, the showing for the week being 904 from all causes, as against 829 a week ago and against 861 of the corresponding week last year. The percentage has increased from 11.7 of last year to 12.6 this year. The greatest cause of death was cerebrospinal fever.

FRENCH FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, July 1.—To the east of Cerny, notwithstanding a recrudescence of artillery bombardment, only local fighting was reported in the sector from Cerny to Allies. An attempt of the enemy to advance at various points on this front was repulsed by our grenades.

In the region east of Reims our first lines were submitted to a violent bombardment in the early part of the night. Strong surprise attacks directed by the Germans in the region east of La Pompelle, north and northeast of Prunay, caused the attackers serious losses and gained nothing for them.

On the left bank of the Meuse artillery fighting continued intense in the region of Avocourt wood, hill 304, and Dead Man hill. An enemy attack on the Avocourt fortified position broke down under our fire.

West of Dead Man hill lively fighting took place around one of our advanced posts, which was lost and retaken on five different occasions and finally was abandoned by both sides. The position was completely destroyed by artillery fire.

BRITISH.

LONDON, July 1.—The enemy artillery has shown considerable activity during the day in the Scarpe valley, in the neighborhood of Lens and north of the river Lys. Seventeen prisoners were captured as a result of our attack last night on the north bank of the Souches river.

During the month of June we have taken in the course of our successful operations against Messines and Wytschaete ridge and on other parts of our front 6,666 German prisoners, including 175 officers, and have also captured sixty-seven guns, including two heavy guns, 102 trench mortars, and 245 machine guns, besides great quantities of other war material.

DAY STATEMENT.

Following up our success yesterday south of Lens, our troops attacked last night on the north bank of the River Souches and captured the enemy's defenses on a front of about half a mile southwest and south of the town.

We successfully raided enemy trenches during the night northeast of Ypehy.

As the result of enemy raids east of Gouzeaucourt and in the neighborhood of Armentieres we took prisoner a few Germans.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 1.—The weather was rainy and misty and the firing on the whole front in nearly all sectors was light. Some reconnoitering encounters had favorable results for our scouts.

Army group of Crown Prince Frederick William—The French endeavored to regain territorial advantages won by our troops on the Chemin des Dames and on the western bank of the Meuse. East of Cerny the enemy twice attacked, after brief bombardments, the trenches we had taken on the plateau south of Bovelles farm. All the attacks were sanguinarily repulsed.

Taking advantage of the disorder, our Lippe battalions stormed the French lines farther east as far as the Allies-Paissy road. By this success, the number of prisoners captured by the well tried Westphalian divisions in three days' fighting was increased to ten officers and more than 650 men.

On the western bank of the Meuse the French endeavored by many attacks to drive us out of the trenches on Hill 304 and east of that place. They were repulsed by our barrage fire and by desperate hand grenade fighting.

RUSSIAN FRONT

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 1.—Army group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria—The Russian government, having been constrained to yield to the pressure of the leading entente powers, part of the army has been induced to attack.

After a destructive fire lasting all day against our positions on the upper Strypa as far as the Narayuvka river there followed in the afternoon powerful attacks by the Russian infantry on a front of about thirty kilometers (eighteen and one-half miles).

The storming troops, who sustained heavy losses, were compelled everywhere to retire by our defensive fire.

Nocturnal attacks, into which the Russians also were driven without artillery preparation by the entente leaders, were unsuccessful and broke down on both sides of Brzezany and near Zurzyn. The artillery duel extended northward as far as the middle Sbikhod and south as far as Stanislau. There have been no attacks on this front up to the present.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, July 1.—In eastern Galicia with the army group of Gen. von Boehm-Ermolli the defensive is in full progress. After several days of violent fire from the heaviest guns the enemy in the afternoon commenced an infantry attack south and southeast of Brzezany and near Koniuchy. They were everywhere repulsed. Wherever portions of the enemy infantry were able to move forward they succumbed before our barrage fire.

A very strong attack, started late in the afternoon west of Kalocz, broke down under our artillery fire. Toward midnight the enemy, without artillery preparation, endeavored to advance south of Brzezany. He was repulsed. During the night the artillery fire declined, but it revived the next morning.

ROUMANIAN FRONT

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 1.—Between the Carpathians and the Black sea no important events have occurred.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, July 1.—There is nothing of importance to report.

ITALIAN FRONT

ITALIAN.

ROME, July 1.—On the Trentino and Carnia fronts the fighting yesterday was confined to the artillery, which was more active on the Asiago plateau and on the Upper But.

On the Julian front last night the enemy surprised and penetrated one of our advanced trenches southeast of Vertoiba. After a sharp struggle he was driven back with severe losses on the arrival of our reinforcements. An attempted assault on an advanced post south of Versic was stopped completely.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, July 1.—On the Isonzo front strong patrols of Hungarian infantry regiments Nos. 72 and 73 forced their way forward near Versic as far as the second enemy line, where they repulsed enemy attacks. They brought back one officer and 186 men prisoners.

MACEDONIAN FRONT

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 1.—On the right bank of the Vardar Bulgarian advanced posts near Altschelmanlu repulsed an attack by British battalions.

SUPPLEMENTARY

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 1.—In the west there has been little fighting activity. A British attack in the morning near Lens failed.

In the east the attacks of the Russians near Koniuchy and between Eloza Lipa and the Narayuvka occasioned new engagements.

KAISER TO KING: MOVE CIVILIANS OUT OF LONDON

AMSTERDAM, July 1.—A semi-official telegram received here today from Berlin says:

"The German press, referring to the British indignation at the air attacks on the fortress of London, says that if England wishes to spare her civilians she can remove them from the neighborhood of store places of war equipment, Folkestone, Dover, Sheerness, and London are such store places.

"The German people, under the pressure of English starvation and the war, have become a hard race with an iron fist. England has felt that and will experience it again tomorrow. England may lie and deceive or rage and threaten. The hammer is in our hands and it will fall mercilessly and shatter the places where England is forging weapons against us."

WAKE UP ON RUSSIAN FRONT

1. Berlin reports Russian attack after destructive artillery fire against positions on the upper Strypa as far as the Narayuvka river, a distance of eighteen and one-half miles, and says storming troops, after sustaining heavy losses, were compelled to retire.

2. Berlin reports Russian attacks, without artillery preparation, broke down on both sides of Brzezany and near Zurzyn. Artillery duels, Berlin says, extended to the neighborhood of Stanislau.

All Men's and Women's Regal Pumps and Oxfords

$3.45 and $4.95

Regular Prices $5, $6, $7, $8, $9

This is a clean sweep of all the low shoes in the Regal Stores, including not only lines in which the sizes are broken, but complete lines in all the newest lasts and best leathers—the most wanted models, the finest shoes in the stores. Famous Nature's Doctor oxfords included.

These prices, $3.45 and $4.95, are less than the same shoes would cost to make today.

We are overstocked on these goods because the weather upset normal purchasing. Folks do not buy low shoes till they need them. There were only ten clear days in April and May—and scarcely more in June. This puts us behind in our regular sales and we are going to sacrifice these goods without reservation—as it is the policy of the Regal Company to carry no goods over from one season to another.

This is your opportunity because most of the summer is still before you. We want to remind you again: this is not an ordinary shoe sale. Ordinary reductions mean little. These are standard values—shoes of known merit, of fixed prices—and this sale represents a striking and genuine economy. We stand back of every pair—they are our best.

DAN'L, AUTHOR OF 'HOLY HELL,' HAS PEACE FITS

"Lunges Like a Bayonet," Bushy Orator Tells "Objectors."

The short, fat girl, with the wide and shuffling feet and the thin, penetrating voice, was the first to arrive at Lincoln hall, 19 West Adams street, yesterday afternoon. She opened the doors, the windows, and her unlimited supply of conversation.

By and by the heavy set woman who was to take the money appeared and settled beside a table just inside the door. On her heels came two men. One wore a stuffy crop of whiskers and a bright smart amount of hair atop his ears. He carried a suitcase. The other had a barber's nightmare of black bushy thatch.

What It Was All About.

The owner of the whiskers opened the suitcase and took a package of printed cards therefrom. He put them beside the heavy set lady who took the money. They read:

LECTURES
for Conscientious Objectors.
Every Sunday—Auspices of LEAGUE OF HUMANITY—Sunday, July 1:
Attorney H. O. Mulks, trustee,
C. V. Cook, treasurer and secretary,
Daniel H. Wallace, chairman.

By twos and threes the "conscientious objectors" began to drift in. When $11.80 worth had arrived the whiskered one stood up, mopped his brow, and said:

"Friends, my name's Cook."

Then he told 'em the man of the bushy hair, Wallace, had a book called "Holy Hell."

"The book ain't printed yet, but when five hundred of you folks subscribe a dollar each it will be and you'll each get a copy," he confided.

"He was in the war for eleven months, until he deserted. If you don't believe it you ought to see him when he has a fit. He gets delirious and yells 'Damn 'em!' and lunges with his hands, just like in a bayonet fight. He tells all about it in his book."

Loves Those Dear Germans.

Then Comrade Cook told why he is against conscription. Lots of the audience, including a federal agent, went to sleep. In twenty minutes Cook let Wallace have the floor. The federal man woke up and Dan'l cut his talk short.

He spoke feelingly of those dear Mexicans and Turks and Arabs, and said they are his brothers and he loves 'em. He expressed a fraternal feeling for those dear Germans, too.

He wound up with the declaration that he has been responsible for keeping 2,000 men out of the United States army, and he advised his hearers to go to jail rather than cast aside their beliefs and convictions.

Then the girl with the wide and shuffling feet started out to sell the audience some more of Dan's books. That busted up the meeting.

In the morning 200 "objectors" had gathered around the Lincoln statue in Lincoln park and bared their heads. But nobody said nothing to nobody.

Socialist Parades Are Broken Up by U. S. Fighters.

Boston, Mass., July 1.—Riotous scenes attended a Socialist parade today. It was announced as a peace demonstration. The ranks of the marchers were broken up by self-organized squads of uniformed soldiers and sailors, red flags and banners bearing Socialistic mottoes were trampled on, and literature and furnishings in the Socialist headquarters in Park square were thrown into the street and burned.

Police reserves stopped the rioting after it had been in progress an hour and a half.

The police took into custody some of the participants in hundreds of fist fights that were waged on the Common and in the line of the parade on Tremont street, while agents of the federal department of justice, under the direction of Assistant District Attorney Goldberg, arrested a number of persons who were alleged to have made unpatriotic remarks in the heat of the conflict. None of the soldiers and sailors who figured in the disturbance was arrested.

Half a hundred men in the uniform of naval reservists, national guardsmen, marines and Canadian "kilties," who had watched the formation of the parade, marched across the Common in a double column and intercepted the procession at the corner of West and Tremont streets, and again at the corner of Winter and Tremont streets. In both instances contact resulted in a fight.

Meanwhile the Socialist headquarters in Park Square had been ransacked and its contents destroyed by a bonfire. The American flag taken from the paraders was placed over a statue of "Lincoln the Emancipator" near the scene of the bonfire.

JOIN GALICIA WITH POLAND, IS GERMANS' PLAN

BERLIN, July 1.—Dispatches from Vienna quote the former Polish minister, Dilinsky, as saying during the course of the budget debate that the new kingdom of Poland must incorporate a monarchy under the scepter of a kaiser and form with Galicia an independent kingdom as in the case of Austria-Hungary.

"We do not need an entente for our liberation," he said. "We are much freer than others outside the monarchy."

Baron von Plener, the official reporter of the debate, said this solution of the Polish question was the right one, adding:

"As things stand today, the English are actually Austria's chief foes. There is no other country where Austrian subjects after the war will be so maltreated and oppressed as in England. It is only due to special friendliness on our side that we make no reprisals. The world will finally perceive that we desire peace, not from weakness, but from an honorable peace policy."

SEES PEACE SOON IF GERMANS WILL START REPUBLIC

AMSTERDAM, July 1.—The Telegraaf interprets Premier Lloyd George's speech on peace delivered at Glasgow as meaning that if the German people democratize their form of government, then the entente will consider that Prussian militarism has been destroyed and the peace conditions now demanded will then no longer remain operative.

The newspaper then says:

"Peace may, therefore, be considered to lie in the hands of the German people. Philipp Scheidemann, the German Socialist leader, appears to have foreseen Premier Lloyd George's declaration when he urged the immediate putting forward of a wider suffrage."

UNITED GREECE SEEMS REALITY; RIVALS MERGE

SALONIKI, July 1.—The provisional government which was established here nine months ago by Premier Venizelos and his followers was merged yesterday into the legal government of United Greece.

The officials of the provisional government have left Saloniki for Athens and steps are being taken to repatriate refugees.

Saloniki thus returns to normal conditions. Greek steamship companies announce the resumption of service between Saloniki and other Greek ports.

Greek Liberty of Opinion.

ATHENS, July 1.—Liberty of opinion will be a cardinal principle of the new government of Premier Venizelos. Officials opposed to the premier, but who have observed a passive attitude and fulfilled their duties, will retain their positions.

Officials, however, who have interfered in party politics and have taken advantage of their positions to further the anti-Liberal cause will be dismissed and prosecuted.

The minister of war has instructed all officers and men to immediately take an oath of fidelity to King Alexander.

DELIGHTFULLY REFRESHING—HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE—In hot weather, a teaspoonful in a glass of water, sweetened to taste, is most refreshing.—Adv.

BUDAPEST RIOT IS COSTLY ONE

AMSTERDAM, July 1.—During the recent franchise demonstrations in Budapest, says a telegram to the Berlin Tages Zeitung from the Hungarian capital, damage to the amount of $300,000 was done. The windows of eighty cafes and about 200 shops were smashed and goods were stolen from the shops. The damage done to tram cars is estimated at $15,000.

Dispatches received in London on June 28 from Budapest reported that 25,000 persons had marched in a demonstration for universal, equal, and secret suffrage. It was reported the police had some difficulty in dispersing the crowds.

Swift & Co. Recommend Birth Control for Flies

If all the descendants of one female fly lived from April 15 to Sept. 10 they would number 5,598,720,000,000. This is one of the interesting facts on flies set out in a booklet entitled "Trap the Fly," issued by Swift & Co. It urges the killing of flies as enemies of human life and tells how to trap them and the best means for their extermination.

KERENSKY WINS WITH HIS FIERY FAITH IN PEOPLE

His Confidence Inspires All to Whom He Makes Appeal.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
(Special Cable to Chicago Tribune.)
STOCKHOLM, July 1.—This rapturous description of Minister of War Kerensky by the venerable war correspondent Dantjenko must be read with the fact in mind that here speaks not only the old conservative in politics, but a man of letters known to all educated Russians for his history of the Russo-Turkish war, in which he served as a correspondent, and for numerous other writings.

While it is interesting for what it tells, this sketch become really significant as the undoubted voicing of the feeling of the old guard conservatives that Kerensky, and perhaps Kerensky alone, can rescue their class from the excesses of the revolution. Knowing that he has no liking for blood, they look to him as the safest and sanest man on the scene.

Therefore, Dantjenko's description, notwithstanding the strain of vehement laudation and possibly because of that quality, is valuable.

Doomed by Ill Health.

Another psychological element in all his studies of Kerensky has its source in the universal belief that he will not outlive the revolution. Hence there is already a disposition to canonize him. His physical weakness is in some degree the basis of his strength and renders him singularly immune from vituperation.

"Kerensky is not only himself a flame," Dantjenko says. "He puts the body fire into all around him. When you hear him speak you have a feeling that your nerves are knit up with his, and it seems as if you yourself were speaking, as if you were governing, directing, declaiming; as if he were not on the platform at all, or in the street, but that you were addressing the multitude. In the throng and in yourself there is only one heartbeat, and that heart seems as big as the whole world, a beautiful and splendid world.

Not Eloquent Talker.

"Kerensky has spoken, and he has gone. You ask yourself how long did he speak—one hour or three minutes? You cannot answer, because time and its present have disappeared. Is Kerensky eloquent? No. Sometimes he makes unexpected pauses. He is so carried away by his subject that his fiery temperament compels him to lapse from one idea to another, changes his fancies as quickly as the pictures on a kaleidoscope. There are sentences he doesn't trouble to finish.

"Sometimes he suddenly changes the whole drift of his speech and takes the subject from quite another side. He has no time to finish the first idea he is speaking about. He is swept into other thoughts which he cannot put aside. But still you have been able to understand him.

"He doesn't try to shape any fine phrases. Sometimes when he has lost the thread of his discourse and before a new flame has lighted the darkness you catch him repeating his words. He does not care.

sentence the pulses are hammering and his inmost thoughts are reflected in his face. When he is speaking it is like the sparks from a great fire. Suddenly you feel yourself standing before a volcano that is throwing out masses of unregulated fire.

Power Lies in Smile.

"Usually his face is gray, weary and sick. But it becomes beautiful and winning, and in his eyes there is a child-like smile. When you have seen that smile you understand why he, as one of the leaders of the revolution, refuses to impose the death penalty. Because he believes so fully in mankind, the people believe in him.

"Loving nobility of character, he seeks and finds it in each soul. He believes each soul has it and every soul that opens to him is deepened and enriched. He has no suspicions, no doubts, and you follow him blindly wherever he leads. You ask is this talent? Temperament then? No, it is higher than temperament. It is an unconquerable faith in the Almighty and eternal truth and justice of freedom. You are following him because there is never one moment when you doubt that if he leads you to your ruin he is going there first and will receive in his sunken breast and on his weak, narrow shoulders all the blows.

"Hear him speak when he is talking about the enemies of freedom, when he is stretching out his weak hand as if he were crushing the iron skull of reaction, and you will understand.

Nothing Kin to Napoleon.

"Somebody said that his faith reminds you of the young Napoleon. But this is a great insult to this self-denying tribune of freedom. That egotistical Corsican who used freedom as the foundation for his own aggrandizement, that cold and self-seeking bookkeeper of the revolution who used the revolution to his own advantage—to compare Kerensky with him!

"If such a man as Napoleon should fall into Kerensky's hands, Kerensky would certainly lock him in the fortress of Peter and Paul. The noble knight of freedom does not dream of crowns and armies. Instead of that he considers the sufferings of the people and gives himself completely to his unhappy countrymen. He does not care about his own fate or how much work is put upon him.

"You would be astonished if you should see how this weak, over-strained delicate man has reinforced himself for the new work which the strongest athlete would be unable to do.

Not a Self-Seeker.

"Yes, Kerensky will give his life for freedom, but he never will make that freedom a stepping stone for himself. He is the bearer of the flag of freedom, not the executioner. He is the tribune of the people, not the bandit. Shame to him who in that face finds something of Napoleon."

The correspondent's best information from the various Russian sources is that no man realizes better than Kerensky the terrible perils which Russia confronts as a consequence of the demoralization in the army. Relying on his enormous popularity, he therefore makes it his foremost task to educate the soldiers to a more self-sacrificing spirit and a stricter discipline.

In addition to this almost superhuman task, he has to fight on two fronts, first against the imperialistic factions which, with tears in their eyes, proclaim in their duma sittings that the fatherland rushes to destruction unless their views are accepted, and second, against the workings of Nikolai Lenine's doctrines, which have spread among the people in the soldiery more extensively than was generally supposed or acknowledged.

Greeted with Enthusiasm.

Meanwhile Kerensky and his great colleague, Tseritelli, are everywhere greeted with enthusiasm. Now on the front, now in Moscow, everywhere sentiment is skillfully created, and everywhere their word is "Peace? Why, certainly!" And everywhere their reply to that word is "But before an approach can be made to a realization of the universally existing wish, the army must be put into fighting trim, and at the front and behind it the authority of the army leaders, which means unquestioning discipline, must be reëstablished."

If he cannot do this a counter revolution and chaos will come.

Only One Rival Exists.

In the sense of an opponent, there is no rival of Kerensky on the scene, though another man looms big on Russia's troubled horizon. This is young Tseritelli, who is only 31 years old, but who is spoken of by some as the coming man if Kerensky, who himself is only 36, falls or dies. Some say that Kerensky was the first to make an entrance upon the revolutionary stage, because Tseritelli, who was in banishment in remote Siberia and could not reach the scene in time, is not today the dominant man in Russia.

For eleven years before the present revolution he was doing hard labor in prison for his share in the revolution in 1905.

LABOR NOTES

Federation Refuses to Recognize Officers of Court Reporters' Union.

THE Chicago Federation of Labor has refused credentials to newly elected officers of the court reporters' union as the result of a decision by the American Federation of Labor that no court reporter who employs others of that avocation may represent the union, though membership and a voice in its affairs may be retained. A rough and tumble fight occurred at a recent meeting of the union when the subject was brought up.

Members of the raincoat workers' union are trying to learn the indentity of a "mysterious sky pilot," who is said to have supplied the Chicago Raincoat company with Negro women workers to fill the places of union members who went on strike at the plant.

Confesses Murder of Relative by Marriage

Detective Julian Bernacchi knew Frank Mirabelli, 9042 Commercial avenue, South Chicago, back in Calabria. So when Mirabelli was wanted for the murder of Pasquale Zuciarelli, 9040 Commercial avenue, the detective found him in the home of a Calabrian on the west side. Mirabelli confessed the crime.

The two had been enemies for years. Zuciarelli rushed at Mirabelli with a stiletto as the latter was entering his home Saturday night. Mirabelli fired five times with a revolver. One bullet struck Zuciarelli in the heart. Mirabelli's daughter is married to Zuciarelli's brother.

COPPER MINERS QUIT IN ARIZONA; SMELTERS SHUT

Globe, Ariz., July 1.—Ninety-two per cent of the copper miners employed at Miami and Inspiration, Ariz., quit work this afternoon in response to a strike call, according to a statement issued here late today by leaders of the Metal Mine Workers' Industrial union, which is affiliated with the Industrial Workers of the World.

Fires were drawn from the smelters at Claflin, Ariz., today after the strike order had been signed by representatives of the miners, and 5,000 men soon will be out of work, according to estimates given out here tonight.

Man on Porch Robbed.

Max Richter, 1081 Milwaukee avenue, was sitting on the porch of his friend, Paul Trochowski, 1816 Walton place, early yesterday when a man with a revolver held him up and robbed him of $15 and a gold watch.

RIOT OF FISTS AFTER ESCORT FELLS A WOMAN

Rioting at Madison and Laflin avenues yesterday brought out a squad of police from several stations and a free for all battle ensued in which two policemen lost their stars and helmets, and a dozen or more fighters were sent away with broken heads.

A crowd was gathered waiting for street cars when Charles Ringmeyer and a woman approached. They were quarreling and in the process of this Ringmeyer was seen to knock the woman down. Instantly the men set upon Ringmeyer and the fight became general.

Ringmeyer, Ed Rosenthal, 3707 Jansen avenue, Charles Hoffman, 3415 North Oakley avenue, and Charles Schauer, 3719 North Robey street, were locked up.

CATAPULT GUN AT CAMP FOR TRENCH FIGHTING

R. O. T. C. Men Will Get Problems in Defense and Attack.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Fort Sheridan, Ill., July 1.—[Special.]—The men of the Wisconsin and Michigan regiment are keen to be "up and at 'em" tomorrow. Members of the first, second, and third battalions will take up the study of trench attack and defense. They will use in the attack the Stokes gun, that is built on the order of the old catapult gun. This weapon shoots a piece of lead pipe fifteen inches long with a can containing "T. N. T." a fuse attached.

In the work tomorrow the attackers will have their trenches in the wake of their deadly missiles. This plan was laid out at West Point by Capt. Oscar J. Gilbert, who will have charge of the work here. A model of the Stokes gun is on exhibition on the estate of Col. Charles Fabyan, River Bank, at Geneva, Ill.

Open North Shore Homes.

Many residents of the north shore entertained men from the training camp today in their homes in Lake Forest, Winnetka, Highland Park, Glencoe, and Evanston. One hundred and eighty-four men spent the day as guests. Among those who opened their homes were:

Mrs. Sharon Thompson, Mrs. J. L. Kean, Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. Leverett Thompson, Mrs. A. B. Dick, Mrs. Hoby Robbins, Mrs. John T. Pirie, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mrs. S. T. Chase, Mrs. James Clow, Mrs. Ruben H. Donnelley, Mrs. Joseph D. Hubbard, Mrs. Arthur Farwell, and A. M. Day, David Dangler, and H. B. Stewart, all of Lake Forest.

Mrs. Andrew McLeish and C. W. Hess and W. C. Miller of Glencoe.

Mrs. Frederick Greeley and Landon Hoyt of Winnetka.

Mrs. Francis Parker, Mrs. W. Burch, and Mrs. George M. Clark of Evanston.

Mrs. H. Shibley, Mrs. Oscar Schmidt, and W. E. Shoemaker of Wilmette.

Pick Dinner Party Guests.

Chaplain Myron E. Adams announced that one man from each company will be selected by the company commander to attend a dinner that will be given by Mrs. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor at Lake Forest next Saturday.

A Peek of Them Used to Buy a Sack of Flour

Mrs. Max Giales of 1032 Wells street will be $7 short when she goes to pay her rent today. This will be because yesterday a trig, chipper young man wooed into her rooming house, engaged a $6 room, and proffered a $10 bill in payment. He was given $7 in change. Something told Mrs. Giales all was not well. So she showed the bill to Owen O'Neil, desk sergeant in the Chicago avenue station, who found it to be of the date of Oct. 15, 1862, and issued by the Confederate States of America.

BELGIAN ENVOYS CHICAGO GUESTS ALL DAY TODAY

Tour of Parks, Dinner, Reception Among Events.

Chicago will be host today to the envoys of the Belgian government visiting the United States in the interests of a closer relationship in making common war against Germany.

The commission, headed by Baron Ludovic Moncheur, will arrive at the Union station at 8:45 this morning, and will be met by a reception committee of which Charles L. Hutchinson is chairman and conducted to the Congress hotel.

Program for the Day.

In the forenoon the party will visit Lincoln park and the north side boulevard system. At 11 o'clock they will go to the University of Chicago, where as the guests of President Harry Pratt Judson, the faculty, and the student body they will make a tour of the institution.

Luncheon will be served at the South Shore Country club, followed by visits to points of interest on the south side.

A dinner will be served at the Congress hotel in the evening. Mr. Hutchinson will be toastmaster. Edgar A. Bancroft will respond to the toast, "The President of the United States," and Baron Moncheur to the toast, "The King of Belgium."

Reception at Art Institute.

A public reception will be held at the Art Institute at 9 o'clock at night. A delegation from the Belgian colony will attend this event in a body.

The members of the commission, besides Baron Moncheur, who will be here are Gen. Leclercq, former commander of the Belgian first division of cavalry; Maj. Osterriech, former attaché of the Belgian legation at Petrograd, and Count Louis d'Ursel, former secretary of the legation at Teheran.

Baron Moncheur for eight years was minister to the United States.

SPOOKY ESTELLE SINGS OF LOVE'S JOY AND MOCKERY

Poems of Passion a New Chapter to Story of Triangle.

St. Louis, Mo., July 1.—[Special.]—Insomnia as a logical inspirer of soul-spilling, and Mrs. Estelle Metzger Hamsley has made good at both. "Spooky Estelle," whose entertainment of the affections of Millionaire Elwood V. Matlack, recently has been much aired, has qualified as a "poetess of passion." Some of her efforts came to light today.

Mrs. Hamsley, who admits having possessed five affinities, thus sings of "Fidelity":

"Be true to thee?" of course, my own,
As the rose is true to her stem,
As the sun is true to the wind god's moan,
As the setting is true to the gem.

No chain holds close the setting sun
To the blushing western sky;
He seeks her arms when day is done,
And the twilight draweth nigh.

"Be true to thee?" While the choir of stars
Chant constancy's sweet refrain;
While attraction holds true, thou son of Mars,
I am thine in thy pleasure and pain!

It is not disclosed which of the five uplifted her soul to this extent:

No more the skies of April frown,
No more the rain the flowers drown,
No more the thorns shall line my crown
Since you love me!

The skies shall wear their sapphire dome,
The flowers the earth with beauty bless,
My soul shall meet yours with reason,
Since you love me!

Mrs. Hamsley includes in her activities that of being a Circe, but at times grew tired of this branch of the service, as witness this lament:

I am weary—so weary—of making dreams
Of the poignant pain that in them gleams.
Oh, give me pleas.

I am weary—so weary—of futile tears,
What fell rain-wrist on lash, dead years.
Oh, let them rest.

I am weary—so weary—of the shimmering dead
That haunt my path with ghastlike tread.
Oh, bury them deep.

Lightning Fires Nichols Home in Lake Forest

Occupants of the George Nichols residence, in Green Bay road, Lake Forest, were driven from their beds when lightning struck the house early yesterday morning. The fire which started in the roof was confined to the upper part of the house, with small damage. The place was formerly owned by E. M. Bowman of Lake Forest, but was recently purchased by Dr. Frank Billings, who presented it to his daughter, Mrs. George Nichols, as a wedding gift.

MEN 25 TO 35 FOR THE SECOND R. O. T. C. SOUGHT

"Men between 25 and 35 years old, if they have been the experience of armies in Europe, make the best officers," said Wharton Clay, secretary of the local branch of the Military Training Camps association, yesterday. "Men of these ages with a certain amount of business experience are the kind we want for the second officers' reserve training camp, which opens at Leon Springs, Tex., Aug. 27.

"It is evident that the younger men have misconstrued the government's circular, which stated that men over 31 would be given preference in the new training camp. While it is true older men are wanted this should not discourage the younger men. A man's chances are greater for being accepted if he is over 30 or 35, but there will be a large number of the 25 year class wearing khaki as officers."

Illinois' quota for the Leon Springs camp will number 955. The camp will instruct 2,500 men.

DOCTOR'S LOST WIFE AND CHILD FOUND—IN A WAY

On Thursday Mrs. May Williams and her young daughter left the home of Dr. William Williams of 1264 Bryn Mawr avenue.

Yesterday a police message was sent out informing all stations of Mrs. Williams' disappearance.

Last evening Mrs. Williams was marked "located" on the Summerdale register. But she wasn't.

Last night a reporter asked the sergeant: "What's it all about?"

Said the sergeant: "Mrs. Williams told me she left home because she is afraid. She gave me her present address in confidence. Do you want that address?"

And the reporter said: "No."

—Stephen Decatur.

LLOYD GEORGE'S GLASGOW SPEECH.

The British premier's speech at Glasgow was a significant utterance. If the German government is in a peace making state of mind they may find in it a challenge to come to terms. Perhaps this is an optimistic overstatement. Nevertheless, despite the formal reiteration of our allies' determination to fight until German militarism is abolished, there is in the tone of the speech and in its more explicit references at best a hint for the German government to express itself more definitely than it yet has done.

Mr. George is right when he points out that the German government's alleged disposition toward an honorable peace cannot be taken seriously so long as it confines itself to a mere offer to meet in conference. His points are telling when he reminds Germany that in spite of the dissemination of rumors that Germany will restore Belgium no German statesman has said that Germany would restore Belgium. No responsible German statesman has, in fact, spoken upon any one of the minimum terms named in Mr. Balfour's authoritative statement of last spring as to the allies' objects.

Although the allies believe that time is on their side they can hardly be expected to go into a blind conference, and if the German government is sincere in its assertion of a merely defensive purpose, if it wishes us to accept its assertion that it is not fighting a war of conquest and imperial ambition, it must bring its purposes out into the light.

There is the less excuse for delay now that America is in the war against Germany. The German public, even though angered against us, must realize that we have no interest in imperialist enterprises of our allies, if they have any. They ought to lay hold of their common sense, and if they are not hopelessly perverted by official militarist propaganda they will realise that America is fighting a threat of insolent force, a system of national aggrandisement through the will to conquer, and that she will continue to fight while Germany's action gives foundation for her fears. Germany's arguments as to her initial responsibility of this war get us nowhere. Germany's silence as to terms is more than ominous. It will keep us in the war until victory is won or Germany's purposes have been shown to be compatible with our peace and security.

The British premier lays down a principle which is the foundation of the American purpose, whether it be a mere aspiration or not. "Peace," he says, "must be framed on so equitable a basis that the nations would not wish to disturb it." We may think this utopian, nevertheless it expresses the end toward which we strive. The only thing which would justify the sacrifice of lives and the expenditure of treasure to which the American republic has now pledged itself, without hope of other gain, is the hope that by breaking down militant aggression, disappointing the policy of growth by conquest, we can purchase for ourselves and our posterity an era of peace and security.

America will continue to fight for that, and Germany, if she desires an honorable peace without further waste of blood, will bring herself frankly and promptly into some sort of accord with that purpose.

How she is to accomplish this we do not presume to say. But it is felt deeply in America, as Mr. George declares of England, that a democratization of the German imperial government would bring us all close to the threshold of mutual trust and restored amity.

The premier expresses American conviction, as well as British, French, and Russian, when he says: "No one wishes to dictate to the German people the form of government under which they should choose to live. But it is right that we should say we will enter into negotiation with a free government of Germany with a different attitude of mind and in a different temper and different spirit and with less suspicion and more confidence than we should with a government whom we feel today to be dominated by the aggressive and arrogant spirit of Prussian militarism."

If this is not to be hoped for the German government might at least outline in fairly concrete terms what its peace terms now are. Until it is ready to be at least as explicit as the allies it cannot pretend that its purposes are compatible even with Mr. Wilson's rather cloudy theory of a peace without victory.

While German purposes are expressed only by invading armies and devastated countrysides America and her allies have no disposition to credit vague asseverations of pacific and defensive intent. They will fight her as a would-be tyrant of the world, as a common enemy of peace.

UNCLE SAM, MEET BRAZIL.

The Brazilians are in it—with one foot, at least, and to the extent of revoking neutrality—and we recall a recent exchange of letters between a publisher and a Boston author. Wrote the publisher, "Kindly prepare us a history of Brazil." Wrote the author, jocosely, "Where in —— is Brazil?"

His reply sums up the average American's knowledge of a country as large as the United States, if you leave out Alaska, and with a population of 17,000,000, a republican form of government, a superb capital, and very considerable wealth. As a fighting force, nothing much at present. Army, 20,000 on paper; 15,000 actually. Fleet, by no means powerful. But Brazil has concentrated forty-six German craft, and the Brazilian navy is ready to patrol the coasts of South America, hunting for submarine bases and warding off German raiders. This would release allied warships for service elsewhere. Besides, a population of 17,000,000 should turn out troops. How many and of what value?

As Brazil speaks Portuguese, onlookers may, perhaps, expect only some such languid response as Portugal has so far made. However, the Portuguese element has been stiffened by immigration from southern Europe. It is fairly good material. But the white population, all told, amounts only to 7,000,000. There are 8,000,000 Indians in Brazil, 2,500,000 Africans, and 5,000,000 mixed bloods. So when it comes to raising a formidable army, Brazil is small pickings.

And yet the cheer that goes up among the allies over Brazil's renunciation of neutrality finds abundant justification. The example probably will be followed by several other South American countries, and perhaps by the whole pack. Then, too, Brazil is demolishing Germany's brightest hope of colonization in South America. Although there were never more than 500,000 Germans in Brazil, Berlin looked upon them as the vanguard of empire. They are no longer that. On this account alone Uncle Sam may prepare a genial and enthusiastic handshake for his new ally.

A LESSON IN THE PRIVATE BANK EVIL.

The failure of Graham & Sons' bank is a pronounced illustration of the need of adequate supervision for all banking institutions, no matter how honestly they are conducted. As far as appears on the surface, this was not a collapse due to dishonesty or skyrocketing investments; it was due to a number of causes, most of which are directly traceable to the essential instability of the private bank as an institution.

Assuming the integrity of officers of the bank, financial men say the failure could not have occurred if adequate precautions had been taken. These precautions were not taken because it was a private institution and no one was permitted to give the management the benefit of sound banking experience. The bank did not have the advice of the state bank examiner or any other outside experts, because the management was a law unto itself.

The statement that the failure was due to withdrawals for subscriptions to the Liberty loan and the Red Cross is a confession that the bank was not properly conducted. Every banker who knows his business prepared for withdrawals of this kind; it was simply common sense to do so. Bankers know the money will circulate back again, that it is in no sense a dead loss.

The proceeds of the Liberty loan will be deposited and spent in this country, and the same is true in a large measure of the disbursement of Red Cross funds. Bankers say there is no occasion for alarm. They consider it unfortunate that the subscriptions to patriotic funds should be used as an excuse for the inevitable result of unwise banking methods.

In any event, the Liberty loan withdrawals were certainly a small factor in the Graham failure, because only the second payment has been made under the government schedule. The total amount paid to government, therefore, could not be much more than one-fifth of the subscriptions taken by the customers of any particular bank.

One of the most potent factors in disrupting the affairs of the bank was undoubtedly the death of its founder. The late Mr. Graham gave the institution stability through his own character and personality, but after he died that stability was withdrawn, and the public, knowing little about his sons, began to take out its money.

The stability of any private bank is a stability dependent entirely on the men who run it. The advantage of a state or national bank is that it derives a large share of its strength from continuing outside supervision. Changes in management only slightly affect its financial standing, whereas changes in the management of a private institution may easily be fatal.

We now have a law on the statute books to regulate private banks in Illinois. In some respects it is said to be inadequate to meet the situation, but the chief disappointment is that it cannot become effective till Jan. 1, 1921. The law has to go to a referendum in 1918, and the legislature decided to allow two years to elapse after its adoption at the election. We do not know what remedy can be applied in the meantime, but the Graham bank failure only makes it plainer than ever that the legislature should have acted long ago.

REGIMENTAL NAMES.

The war department proposal to make the regular army system of designating regiments applicable to the national guard and the prospective national army is probably a good one, but we think it would be a mistake to eliminate the state name entirely in designating national guard units. Under the proposed system, the First Illinois infantry, for example, might become the Fifty-seventh infantry, while the Second Michigan might become the Sixty-third infantry. We think a consecutive system of numbering all regiments in the service is advisable, but we see no reason why the names of the states could not be retained. To revert to our examples, we should then have the Fifty-seventh Illinois infantry and the Sixty-third Michigan. The British have found distinctive names for regiments a decided assistance in fostering esprit de corps. That esprit counts for something in winning battles, and we cannot afford to disregard it.

THE MYSTERY OF THE GREENS.

[From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Suppose you are a person who raises domestic animals—chickens, cattle, guinea pigs, or what not—and that you desire to give them the food that will do them the most good. You wish to feed them scientifically, and you make a study of the foods that are necessary for their growth, health, strength, fattening. And then suppose you feed the young of these animals on the carefully controlled ration of grains and mineral substances which your information has shown you to be proper for them. You will be surprised if you find that they do not grow properly.

But you will find just that thing. Add a little alfalfa to their diet, and these animals begin at once to thrive normally.

Science has not yet discovered what there is in green leaves that the animal system demands, but experiment has amply proved that such a substance exists. In the seeds of plants (grains) are contained proteins, carbo-hydrates, fats, cellulose, and mineral salts—all the foods necessary, according to chemistry, to sustain life. But something else is necessary, and that mysterious thing is contained only in green things.

This explains our craving for radishes and lettuce and young onions and asparagus in the spring of the year. It's not because we are tired of our winter's diet and wish for a change, but because there is a very real bodily need for these things. Instinct tells us that nature has put into the green leaves something that she has left out of the seeds, but something that we cannot well do without. And the fact that science has not yet been able to isolate these elements has nothing whatever to do with the case. Science recognizes their existence, though it hasn't been able to name them yet. And so science gives us this advice—we quote a well known physician:

"Any diet in which the seeds of plants form the principal part will be made safe by adding to it milk and the leaves and tubers of plants."

That reminds us that when it was remarked that Grainger's latest composition was "full of amorous interludes," Arthur Whiting corrected, "You mean bamorous interludes."

Pacifists in Tennyson's Time.

Sir: Apropos of "The Prophetic Bard," do you recall that the pacifists of Maud's day forced Tennyson to change the line that follows in your history from—

"For the long, long canker of peace is over and done," to

"For the peace that I deemed no peace is over and done"?

The idea that peace could be a canker grated on their sensitive nerves. S. T.

AS usual, Lloyd George compresses a good deal into a few words. As, "we are pounding a sense of inferiority into every pore of the German military mind."

AS a place to sing, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" has the defects of "The Star Spangled Banner." A sample unsingable phrase is "His terrible, swift sword." Considered even as verse it is a bad line for that rhythm.

THE Trily's editorial yesterday on chasing butterflies brings up a chapter of "Lord Jim," in which the narrator shows that a man who may be unconcerned in the face of danger may be unnerved completely by a butterfly. The passage, one of our favorite bits of Conrad, may be new to you:

"After all, there were only seven of these rascals. They got up from the grass and start running with their sarongs tucked up, waving spears above their heads, and yelling to each other to look out and catch the horse, because I was dead. I let them come as close as the door here, and then bang, bang, bang—take aim each time too. One more shot I fire at a man's back, but I miss. Too far already. And then I sit alone on my horse with the clean earth smiling at me, and there are the bodies of three men lying on the ground. One was curled up like a dog, another on his back had an arm over his eyes as if to keep off the sun, and the third man he draws up his leg very slowly and makes it with one kick straight again. I watch him very carefully from my horse, but there is no more—fresh grass rubip—keep still, so. And as I looked at his face for some sign of life I observed something like a faint shadow pass over his forehead. It was the shadow of this butterfly. Look at the form of the wing. This species fly high with a strong flight. I raised my eyes and saw him fluttering away. I think—Can it be possible? And then I lost him. I dismounted and went on very slow, leading my horse and holding my revolver with one hand and my eyes darting up and down and right and left, everywhere! At last I saw him sitting on a small heap of dirt ten feet away. At once my heart began to beat quick. I let go my horse, keep my revolver in one hand, and with the other snatch my soft felt hat off my head. One step. Steady. Another step. Flop! I got him! When I got up I shook like a leaf with excitement, and when I opened these beautiful wings and made sure what a rare and so extraordinary perfect specimen I had, my head went round and my legs became so weak with emotion that I had to sit on the ground."

DREAMS.

(W. M. Letts, "Songs from Leinster.")

My son is in America
Away beyond the sea,
But in his dreams he comes back home,
And looks out toward Knockree.
He sees the ribbon of white road
Go winding towards Glenchree,
And he knocks with his stick on the open door
To call herself and me.

All day he's working in the town,
And moldered with the street.
But in his dreams he feels the grass—
The grass beneath his feet.
He wanders up the green hill-side,
The elder bloom smells sweet,
Then he praises God for the Irish air
And reek of burning peat.

The wonders of the West he sees,
For men of wealth live there
In houses reaching to the stars,
With everything that's fair.
"But och!" says he, "the hills for me,
The sight of grouse or hare,
The cry of curlews over the bog,

FAKING OF SKIN FOODS.

POSSIBLY ten years from now we will have scrapped all of our hair tonics, facial creams, and skin foods and will be faking ductless glands instead. Of course, we all know the fakery of skin foods, facial creams, and hair tonics. They serve a few useful purposes, it is true, but they do not do one-tenth the stunts for which they are used. However, so long as there is nothing to offer in their place our hope lingers and with some of us faith abides.

For years physiologists have been working on the chemistry and physiology of those very important but ill understood organs—the ductless glands. These glands are especially potent because they pour their secretion directly into the blood. They are ill understood because it has been difficult to secure their secretions pure for analysis and experiment.

Among the more important of the glands are the thyroid, the thymus, the parathyroid, and the carotid glands in the neck and upper chest, the liver, pancreas, adrenals, and intertestals in the abdomen; the sex glands or gonads in the pelvis, or nearby, and the pineal and the two top parts of the pituitary in the head.

Dr. E. L. McEwan gives the following as among the changes in the skin due to the influence of these glands: Pigmentation of the skin, pigmentation of pregnancy, of pelvic tumors, pigmented new growths in the skin, Addison's disease, the skin conditions so frequently found in diabetes, the skin conditions associated with excess of adipose tissues, the skin troubles which come during puberty; the growth of hair on various parts of the body at that time; the skin and hair changes which come with the change of life in women and at about the same physiological epoch with men—for example—wrinkles, excessive growth of hair in women, some cases of baldness in men and women, excessive sweating, dry skin.

Cushing tells us that when there is too much pituitary secretion the hair becomes coarse, the skin is greasy and moist; it may feel boggy, and deeper furrows and wrinkles may develop on the face and hands. There may be an overgrowth of hair. These conditions, McEwen says, may gradually right themselves and then go to the other extreme. Too little pituitary secretion is furnished and consequently there develops smooth, transparent, dry baby skin, failure of axillary and pubic hair, and a tendency to obesity.

That the gonads influence the skin is a matter of common information. Lessening of this secretion in the female causes a growth of hair on the face. Lessening of this secretion such as occurs in the maturity years in both sexes causes wrinkling of the skin, atrophy of the skin, loss of adipose tissue, and thinning of the hair.

One who reads this list will recognize most of the conditions for which we now use skin foods and hair tonics. It is not improbable that our children, instead of wasting time and money on these preparations, will know how to get to the root of the trouble through the ductless glands.

STOP TINKERING.

H. H. D. writes: "1. Please tell me if sal hepatica makes one nervous. I have to take it for rheumatism. Am 80 years old and cannot stop. Am constipated. 2. Do you think a teaspoonful of dry sulphur twice a week is good for rheumatism?"

REPLY.

1. Sal hepatica does not make you nervous. It does not benefit rheumatism.

2. Sulphur is not good for rheumatism. It strikes me that you are a natural tinker. You have tinkered with yourself until you are in a bad way.

BABY'S FOOD TOO RICH.

Mrs. J. A. writes: "I have a little boy 8 months old. He seems to be very well except that the first urine passed in the morning is bright orange in color and has an offensive odor. The urine passed during the rest of the day is thick and whitish.

REPLY.

His food is too rich. Use a weaker formula. Give him some water between feedings. Go to bed without any dinner, take more water, eat somewhat less and take more exercise. The condition described is of minor importance.

NO HARM IN HOUSE PAINT.

J. H. S. writes: "Please tell me in your column if there is any harm in having the house or rooms painted while my wife is pregnant. Some of the well meaning neighbors have told us it would kill the child. Is there any truth to it?"

REPLY.

There would be no harm done. The odor of lead solvents which your wife would absorb would be far short of the dose needed to harm her materially. It would not produce abortion or kill the child.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

(Copyright, 1917: By the Frankwood Co.)

SO intense is the indignation in England excited by the extremely frank legislative report of the gross mismanagement of the early portion of the campaign in Mesopotamia, resulting in the loss of an entire division under Gen. Sir Thomas Townshend at Kut, that it seems to have obliterated the memory of the still more disastrous Gallipoli-Dardanelles venture, and the reappointment of its chief author—namely, Winston Spencer Churchill—to the cabinet has in consequence escaped much popular notice or criticism.

Winston Spencer Churchill, who has been in turn secretary of state for the home department, president of the board of trade—that is to say, minister of commerce—first lord of the admiralty, and chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, has now taken the place of Lord Cowdray as chairman of the so-called air board, or aviation department. He finds the department entirely reorganized by Lord Cowdray on a business basis.

When Lord Cowdray took charge things were in an absolutely chaotic condition. Thus, there were between fifty and sixty different types of engines in use for air craft, rendering anything like standardization impossible. Lord Cowdray promptly reduced the number to a dozen.

Lord Cowdray, who is a rich man, refused to accept a salary. But Winston Spencer Churchill will receive the $20,000 odd a year, which represents the stipend of the various members of the cabinet since the day when in the early part of the war they agreed to all pool their salaries, the only exception made being that in favor of the prime minister. Several of the cabinet officers being, like Lord Cowdray, well to do, followed his example in refusing a salary, among them being Lord Curzon.

The return to office is a great boon to Winston Spencer Churchill. For he has no private fortune of his own, his mother, Lady Randolph Spencer Churchill, needing every bit of the money which she derives from the property in New York which she inherited jointly with her two sisters, Lady Leslie and Mrs. Moreton Frewen, from her father, the late Leonard Jerome, and which comprises the premises now occupied by the Manhattan club. In fact, when out of office Winston Spencer Churchill is dependent almost entirely upon his pen for a livelihood.

As chairman of the air board Winston Spencer Churchill will now have an opportunity of making good his loudly proclaimed views as to the necessity for destroying the German naval bases at Zeebrugge, at Wilhelmshafen, at Kiel, etc., by means of aerial attacks. In the early stages of the war he announced his determination to hunt the German warships "into their holes and there destroy them like rats." He failed to do so when first lord of the admiralty. Now he has the opportunity to do so as head of the aviation department.

It was only the other day that he, alike in print and from the platform, strongly advocated an aerial attack upon these German naval bases and savagely criticised the authorities for refraining from taking any steps in this direction.

Those who have allowed themselves to be impressed by Winston Spencer Churchill's recent criticisms of the government for permitting Zeebrugge to exist evidently do not know how strongly the Germans are established there. High power guns of fifteen inch caliber mounted on the sand dunes give a command of fifteen or more miles seaward.

The port itself, with its protecting breakwater and lock and a harbor with an area of 240 acres of water is connected with the city of Bruges by a splendid canal, twenty-seven feet deep, with a bottom width of seventy-two feet. The Germans as soon as they obtained possession of the place in the autumn of 1914 at once realized its possibilities and have spent millions of money and have devoted all their efforts to rendering the place impregnable to attack by sea.

It might have been successfully attacked from the sea at first when Churchill was still in charge of the admiralty, but he neglected the opportunity, and now it is impossible.

The only way that it can be attacked is from the air and it is up to him now to concentrate all the efforts of his department to destroy Zeebrugge, from which the destroyers and submarines issue to create havoc in the English channel and in the southern portion of the North sea.

Until this is accomplished it is idle to talk of the Germans being beaten on the land or on the sea. Quite recently the Berlin Kreuz Zeitung, a government organ, remarked editorially: "So long as we remain in possession of the ports of Flanders all else is mere by-play." He went on to confess: "Without the Flemish coast ports, especially Zeebrugge, the U-boat war against England and her allies would have been impossible."

Zeebrugge is, in fact, the lair of the Teuton submarines.

For the first time since the days of the reformation the primate of all England presided last week at a trial in the king's bench division of the High Court of Justice in London and delivered judgment in a case that was brought before him on appeal. Beside him on the bench was one of the $30,000 a year justices of the High court, namely, Lord Coleridge, who has often visited America, first of all with his father, who was for so many years lord chief justice, and afterward on his own account.

The appeal which came before this unique tribunal was that of a clergyman, the Rev. William Rice, against the decision of his diocesan, the bishop of Oxford, who had inhibited him, on various charges, from the performance of all his ecclesiastical duties as rector of the parish of Sympson, in Oxfordshire. In olden times the legal jurisdiction of the Archbishops of Canterbury and of York was wide, extending to all sorts of purely lay offenses and crimes. But since the reformation their powers in this respect have been restricted to ecclesiastical cases.

The tribunal presided over by the primate in the case of the appeal of the rector of Sympson against the bishop of Oxford, who is also prelate of the Order of the Garter, was constituted by virtue of a law enacted in 1808, known as the benefices bill, and which provided that in such cases of appeal the proceedings should take place not in the archbishop's palace of Lambeth but in the Court of King's Bench; that the primate should preside, and that a judge of the Court of King's Bench should be designated by the lord high chancellor to assist him in determining questions of law and of fact.

The archbishop was arrayed in his convocation robes, convocation being, as I have had occasion to point out before in these letters, the ecclesiastical diet, composed of an upper and a lower house, in which the bishops, the deans, the archdeacons, and the clergy are represented, the entire convocation being presided over by the primate. Lord Coleridge wore his red robes and ermine of a justice of the king's bench. It was Lord Coleridge who directed and controlled the counsel and who determined the admission and exclusion of evidence.

Of course, these tribunals deal exclusively with ecclesiastical offenders belonging to the established, that is to say, the state church, of England. Clergy of other denominations have to content themselves with the ordinary tribunals of the land.

THE NEIGHBOR'S CHICKENS.

Chicago, June 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—(1) The next door bungalow has been rented lately and the parties are putting up a wooden chicken barn in the rear of the premises a foot from our fence. As ours is a frame building, we fear being overrun with mice and rats, of which this neighborhood already abounds. Can people keep chickens if they keep them fenced in?

(2) How far must the chicken house be from the neighbor's fence if they are allowed to keep chickens?

(3) Can I hold the landlord of the building next door for half of the expenses in repairing the fence which stands on the building line, or, in case a new one is necessary, must he pay half the expense of same?

(4) If I take care of and make repairs on the fence need I allow the neighbors to use it in any way whatever? READER.

1. If the chickens prove troublesome you should report the situation to the department of health in the city hall.

2. There is no rule.

3. An Illinois statute provides that adjoining owners must share the cost of the division fence, but the procedure provided is not applicable to your case. The law is unsettled.

4. You cannot prevent the neighbors from making reasonable use of the fence.

Chicago, June 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—At the age of 20 years I signed contract with a school for one of their courses and to pay a certain amount of money. If I wish to discontinue this course can the school make me pay for the full course? L. H. S.

No. Your minority is a defense unless you have ratified the contract after coming of age. We assume that you are a male.

INCOMPLETE LOANS BY DEFUNCT BANKS.

Chicago, June 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have made a building loan with the now bankrupt Auburn State bank and their real estate office of which $1,600 is still to be paid in order to complete the mortgage. I am told that said bank has sold my mortgage and I cannot collect the balance. Am I liable for this mortgage in full, and what course can I take and how can I complete my holding? Mrs. L.

A person who in good faith purchases your mortgage from the bank could enforce it in spite of the fact that you do not pay the full amount that the bank agreed to pay you. You should investigate the circumstances of the sale to see whether it was in collusion, course of business, as is probable, or was a collusive arrangement intended to defeat you.

A MONTH-TO-MONTH TENANT.

Chicago, June 26.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—An oral contract was made to rent an apartment for more than one year. The contract was made April 25, 1917, and was to be ended May 1, 1918. May and June rents were regularly paid, but nothing has been said about leave. At time of making contract it was understood that the landlord would bring the lease for signature. Is such a contract binding without a written agreement? E. H. S.

You are merely a tenant from month to month, which means that either party may terminate on thirty days' notice.

USURY.

Chicago, June 26.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A friend of mine took a loan on his furniture. The loan company charged him 3% per cent interest. Is it legal to charge such interest? If not, what action can be taken? F. E.

He is under no legal obligation to pay more than the principal.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

MR. MASON ON CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS.

Chicago, June 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your very unkind and unfair editorial on conscientious objectors this morning prompts me to ask you for a brief space to reply. You describe the conscientious man as follows:

No matter what the provocation, his philosophy demands absolute nonresistance. He must renounce all thought of using his fists or using firearms for self-protection. He is not entitled to shoot the burglar who enters his home or to fight off the highwayman who picks his pocket. He cannot even call a policeman to do these things for him, because it would not be right to seek another to do what he cannot conscientiously do himself.

No other kind of objector can refuse to fight without placing himself in the traitor class.

Now, there are many conscientious people who believe that we ought to prepare to defend this country and who do not believe that it is a wise military plan to send American soldiers through the dangers of the sea when there are so many soldiers of our allies, notably Great Britain, who are so much nearer the fighting line than our boys are. It is admitted that Great Britain has two million trained and well equipped soldiers within a few miles of the firing line who run no danger of submarines in crossing the English channel.

There are many, also, who believe that those who want to go, like the four Roosevelt divisions, so-called, ought to be allowed to go, as the law provides. These people are not in the traitor class; they are just as anxious to win the war as any one.

We gain nothing for our country or for ourselves by calling hard names.

WILLIAM E. MASON.

REVISE THE PENSION LAWS.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your editorial, "Revise the Pension Law," is a powerful and just indictment of our country. Our neighbor to the north has indeed put us to shame.

The inadequate, unscientific application or lack of application of pensioning the men, women and children of the Spanish war, etc., is, in my opinion, the sole reason why the government was not overwhelmed with volunteers when a state of war was declared.

Permit me to quote from the last paragraph: "It would be a travesty on our national honor if it could be said ten or twenty years hence that the children of the men who died in France were not given an equal opportunity with the children of the men who stayed at home." Does this not apply with equal force to the children of the men who died in Cuba, Porto Rico, Philippine islands, and the United States of America nearly twenty years ago?

CONCERNING A BAD HABIT.

Chicago, June 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It is only a misapprehension of nursing affairs that has induced the editor of THE TRIBUNE to write his editorial entitled, "Don't Spread a Bad Habit," because every nurse knows that it is an honor to serve in the army with or without a commission.

Wrong as his conclusion is, we cannot blame the uninformed man too severely for an expressed opinion all too hastily formed. The facts are: Today the nurses of France and Britain have commissions. An American nurse going into service there is placed in subordination to these nurses commissioned by France and England. A great number of these women have no training. To place a trained worker, with years of experience, under the command of untrained amateurs, is to lose the benefit of the years of training and perfected technique. The American Red Cross nurses are graduates of the best American hospitals, and are competent women, trained for their own line of work.

The only reason for the existence of Red Cross nurses is to have the best qualified women thus trained and fully prepared to give scientific care to the wounded and sick soldiers. The conferring of rank upon the American Red Cross nurse going abroad into active service in French and British hospitals is requested simply that the nurse may not have to work at disadvantage, but may be able to insure that the enlisted men and their combatant officers may be cared for with utmost efficiency.

RED CROSS NURSE.

SOCIALISTS AND PEACE.

Chicago, June 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I am a Socialist, and I say that any man or woman who talks peace at this time is doing his utmost to make Socialism forever impossible. He is either a moon-eyed idiot or an arrant knave. If any one wants to do his bit for socialism let him help drive the Hun back on his reservation and erect barriers enough to keep him there and then we will talk socialism until the cows come home. W. V. T.

GOT IT OUT OF HIS SYSTEM.

Chicago, June 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The most futile thing in the world is arguing with an editor. I will therefore only suggest that you print your war editorials, especially your Sunday editorials on the German form of government, on the sporting page. They may prove convincing to a man of sporting page intelligence. To a man in the habit of reading editorials they are an insult. Unless you regard your editorial readers as ignoramuses and boors your war editorials are inexcusable.

Annual July Clearance Sale

The Biggest Fashion-Value Event of the Year Is Here

Our Clearance Sale starts this morning—always recognized for its exceedingly remarkable values, it is of greater importance this year than ever before.

In spite of greatly increased and still increasing costs we are offering to the women of Chicago the very same substantial reductions of former years.

We do not carry the merchandise of one season into the next. We cannot, if we are to retain our leadership in fashion. We must sell in this sale all our spring merchandise, and have marked it for that purpose regardless of cost.

In addition, fortunate purchases of fine materials have enabled us to fashion for this July Sale some splendid lots of garments—special in quality and freshness as well as price.

Here is the season's best opportunity to practice economy—and at the same time to retain all that great satisfaction of having smart clothes of quality.

LABOR BLAMED FOR $750,000 BLAZE IN LOOP

In explaining the letter sent out Armstrong said no violence would be used.

After his call upon Mr. Bunn, Armstrong was again called before the assistant state's attorney, and reiterated his statement that no violence would be employed.

FILM SOAKED IN OIL.

The representative of the Triangle company present at the conference in First Deputy Westbrook's office declared a reel drama sent out to a theater to be exhibited evidently had been confiscated by union agents. It was returned to the company, he said, with a note attached to it. Both the reel and the note were saturated with kerosene. The note read: "Something is going to happen unless you unionize."

As a result of the conference First Deputy Westbrook ordered the arrest of Peter Cunniff, organizer and former business agent of local 187. Cunniff's connection with the local is said to have terminated before it was merged with local 110 of the operators' union.

Detectives late in the day arrested James Hood, former assistant business agent of Local 187, who is employed as an operator at the Rosewood theater, 1823 Montrose avenue. He was charged with having returned the oil-saturated film to the Triangle company. He denied this and declared he was not the author of the accompanying note.

The film company managers said a number of employes had been discharged recently for disobedience and had laid their troubles before the unions.

FIVE EXPLOSIONS HEARD.

The fire in the Pathe company's offices was accompanied by five distinct explosions. Each explosion marked the wreck of several film dramas stored in the vaults. The detonations were heard all over the loop and brought guests in slight attire to the street from their rooms in the Majestic, Great Northern, and Tremont hotels and the Palmer house nearby.

The loss to the Pathe company in film dramas ready for release was set by C. W. Bunn, Chicago manager of the company, at $500,000.

The loss to the Consumers' building was estimated at $150,000 and the damage to the Baltimore building, across an alley in Quincy street, was estimated at $125,000.

While the fire was not believed to have been of incendiary origin, Chief Deputy State Fire Marshal A. A. Bach and City Fire Marshal Thomas O'Connor said they would make a rigid investigation.

Four employes of the Pathe Film company were at work in the offices when the first explosion occurred in the vaults. The explosion blew open the door of the vault, shook the buildings, and was heard throughout the loop.

The employes fled to the street. Night Watchman H. W. Yeager jumped into an elevator, drove through dense smoke to the sixth floor and made his way to an adjoining building at 218 South State street, where he awakened Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Swisher, who have a studio in the Consumers' building. Yeager and Mr. Swisher dragged Mrs. Swisher into the elevator and reached safety on the ground floor. Yeager fell unconscious and was carried outdoors by firemen.

Other Films Saved.

Firemen who climbed with their hose up ladders and fire escapes were showered with glass from windows broken by the successive explosions and were also blown to the street by gusts of air filled with smoke and flame. They succeeded in preventing the fire from spreading above the sixth floor.

Three other film companies have offices in the building, but sustained no loss. These were the Universal, on the fifteenth floor; the Mutual, on the eighteenth, and the Feature, on the fourth. Several hundred thousand dollars' worth of film dramas were stored in the vaults of these companies.

"Many of the reels destroyed were of colored pictures and cannot be duplicated. We have sent distress calls to our branch offices in Minneapolis, Milwaukee, and Detroit to rush films to Chicago, so that our service will not be crippled," said Mr. Bunn.

Firms in the Consumers' building whose stocks were damaged by fire and water were: The Hilton company, clothing, dealers, first and second floors; Remington Typewriter company, third floor, and Schanak Bros., tailors, sixth floor.

In the Baltimore building the losses were distributed among the Fumgermicki restaurant, first floor; Smith & Wolf, tailors, third floor, and Robert Gano, tailor, fourth floor.

BOMB IN NEGRO FLAT LAID TO RACE TROUBLE

Negro occupants of a three flat building at 5220 Maryland avenue were thrown into confusion last night when a bomb was exploded in the vestibule, wrecking it. There was a rumor that race resentments were responsible. No arrests were made.

The ground floor is occupied by the family of the Rev. James Robinson, pastor of the Antioch church at 5223 South State street. They were thrown from their beds, plaster was ripped from the walls, and the windows shattered.

The third floor is occupied by B. T. Motley, the owner of the building. Motley estimated the loss at $12,000.

Rumors reached the police that white residents of the neighborhood resented the sale of the building to Motley, who is a Negro.

Saxony and Whittall Rugs

WHITTALL'S THE MARK OF QUALITY REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

After each season most of the prominent manufacturers of rugs discontinue making and selling certain patterns in their lines in order to make room for others.

They call these "dropped," and sometimes it might seem that this "dropping" is done in an arbitrary way, for many of the "dropped" patterns are as pleasing and popular as any they have shown.

This is so throughout these assortments, for the numbers that are to be "dropped" for next season are, in several instances, among the present season's most active sellers.

Nevertheless, because lines of these numbers cannot be filled in to keep sizes in each pattern complete, decisive reductions have been put into effect beginning to-day to close these patterns out.

RUSSIA'S LONG FIGHT FOR PORTS STILL UNWON

Lack of Communication Is Great Handicap in Present War.

BY COL. HENRY J. REILLY.

Russia's great difficulty has always been lack of seaports. Through all her modern history she has sought them. Most of her wars have been fought in an endeavor to reach the sea.

Her struggles with Sweden were primarily due to her desire for ports on the Baltic. Her centuries of war with the Turk were first to reach the Black sea and then, by gaining control of the Dardanelles and the Bosporus, to reach the Mediterranean.

This led to her also fighting the kingdom of Sardinia, France, and Great Britain. Her advance in central Asia, and particularly in Persia, has been largely due to her desire to reach the Persian gulf.

Led to War with Japan.

Her expansion to the Pacific, the shores of which she first reached about the time the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock, has been governed by the same motive. Her virtual occupation of Manchuria and the Liao-Tung peninsula with its harbors of Port Arthur and Dalny, which led to her war with Japan, were all part of her struggle to reach the sea and obtain ice free ports open all the year around to commerce.

In other words, Russia's history for some time has shown her thorough understanding of the value of overseas communication and the important part such communications play in the development of a country. The present war has more than justified this desire, as due to her lack of internal development a very large part of the essentials have had to be purchased by her in foreign countries. The only road for these essentials to reach Russia has been by way of the sea. Turkey's entry into the war definitely closed the sea routes leading to her Black sea ports.

German Control of Baltic.

Germany has exercised virtual control of the Baltic since the beginning with the result that little or nothing could reach Russia by her ports on this sea. Thus she has had only her ports on the Arctic ocean in Europe and Vladivostok on the Japan sea in Asia as entries for the supplies of all kinds which, not making herself, she has been compelled to purchase from her allies or neutrals.

The only port on the Arctic connected with the Russian railway system at the beginning of the war was Archangel. This port is frozen about six months each year. Also it is connected with the main railway system of Russia by a single line of track.

The result has been that a large part of the time more freight has been landed at Archangel than could be transported inland. Freight stacked up at a port does not relieve the want in the interior of a country.

New Railway Built.

To better this situation a railway has been built from Petrograd to a new town on the opposite side of the Bay of Romanoff, from Novo Alexandrevsk, an ice free port on the Murman coast of the Kola peninsula. This port, though 250 miles north of Archangel and on the Arctic ocean itself, is open all the year around, due to the gulf stream.

The railway, which is 660 miles long, was opened to traffic in December, 1916. It takes only two days for freight to reach Petrograd. This has bettered conditions materially.

The Trans-Siberian railway was completed, with the exception of the section around Lake Baikal, prior to the Russo-Japanese war. At that time Port Dalny, an ice free port in the Liao-Tung peninsula, was the terminus. However, this port was lost to the Japanese as a consequence of the war, with the result that Vladivostok, which is not free from ice throughout the year, became the end of the railway.

Road Now Double Tracked.

During the war the section of the railway around Lake Baikal to the south was completed with the result that there was direct rail communication from either Moscow or Petrograd to Vladivostok. Also numerous long sidings were built east of Lake Baikal and the straightening out and double tracking of the line west of this lake commenced.

After the war this work was completed with the result that at the beginning of the present war the road was virtually a double tracked one. In spite of this fact the Russians have been unable to handle all the freight landed at Vladivostok, with the result that there has been an immense accumulation at this port of supplies much needed in Russia proper.

There can be no doubt that throughout the war Russia's military activity has frequently been limited at decisive moments, due to lack of essential supplies primarily brought about by lack of proper communications.

Firecrackers Start Fire.

Lighted firecrackers thrown by a crowd of boys set fire to an awning in front of Patrick O'Malley's saloon at 703 South Clark street early last night, and threatened for a time to spread to the upper floors of the building.

GARY WOMAN HITS HOYNE FOR TALK OFF HIS SUBJECT

Miss Kate Wood Hay, president of the Gary Civic Service club, yesterday issued a statement assailing State's Attorney Hoyne, who spoke in Gary Friday evening by invitation of the organization. Mr. Hoyne was to have spoken on a suffrage topic, but instead attacked conditions in Gary and East Chicago.

Mrs. Hay refers to the protestations of Gary women regarding "the affront of turning a suffrage celebration into a vicious attack upon a city and county into which he had been invited as a guest and not as a prosecutor."

She attacks Hoyne's few words on Illinois suffrage and states that the official's announcement that he had been requested to discuss conditions in Chicago and Lake county "was an unofficial request, and was put over on him by those whose apparent interest was the embarrassment of the present administration in Gary."

This is taken to refer to the man who escorted Mr. Hoyne to Gary—George Cummerow, Democratic city chairman; W. F. Fitzgerald, and Harvey J. Curtis, Democratic candidate for mayor.

2 DEAD, 2 SHOT, IN NEW VENDETTA IN "LITTLE HELL"

Auto Spits Death, Then Dashes Away—No One "Saw It."

Two men are dead, a third shot eight times and cannot survive, and a fourth is at Alexian Brothers' hospital with a shattered kneecap—all from a brief blaze of gunfire late yesterday at West Division street and Chatham court.

It means a new vendetta in "Little Hell."

Leonardi Russo of 2014 Wabansia avenue and John Alonzio, who lived at Cleveland street and North avenue, are dead, who died. Frank Gonsulus of 1111 Townsend street has the eight bullets, and Michael Dwardi, 858 Milton avenue, the shattered kneecap.

How It Happened.

All four were standing at Division and Chatham just after 3 o'clock. Suddenly a black automobile drew up to the curb and a rain of lead poured forth upon the little group. Russo fell in his tracks, pierced by five bullets.

Alonzio started to run and reached the opposite side of Division before he fell, shot twice through the head. Gonsulus and Dwardi ran east in Chatham court, Dwardi in front. Gonsulus dropped twice, but started afresh each time, and each time drew to himself a new volley. Dwardi, when his knee was broken, remained down.

The two men in the automobile, when their last victim was on the ground, drove rapidly in Division street to Frontier avenue, then out of sight.

Nobody Will Talk.

Ten minutes later the police arrived. No one would admit knowing anything about the affair. They turned hose on the blood reddened pavement and the children went on with their play.

Russo's widow, Anna, told Sergts. Blau and Burns that there has been "bad blood" between her husband and her brothers since her marriage eight years ago, but denied that her brothers had anything to do with the shooting. She has three children, the youngest only 3 months old.

"No Eyes in His Legs."

Chief Schnettler himself visited the East Chicago avenue station last night, to inspire the men working on the case. He visited Dwardi in the hospital.

"Who shot you?" the chief asked.

"I don't know," the injured man replied. "I was shot in the knee and I haven't any eyes in my legs."

Auto Dealer Sued for $20,000.

Daniel Sideman, president of the Federal Association of Automobile Engineers, Saturday, through his attorney, I. B. Perlman, filed suit for $20,000 against Walter T. Miller, a motor car dealer. Attorney Perlman said the action was for false arrest and malicious prosecution.

J. H. MAY WINS GRAND CHICAGO WITH 98 'BIRDS'

Local Shooter Cops Prelim to G. A. H.; Five Tie at 96.

BY JOHN ALCOCK.

J. H. May won the Grand Chicago handicap at the Chicago Gun club yesterday and retained for the home organization, of which he is secretary, the $500 Chamber of Commerce trophy. Standing on the eighteen yard line, May broke 98 of his 100 targets. He missed one bird in his first twenty and another in his fourth batch.

The handicap, Chicago's biggest preliminary to the Grand American, which is to be contested the latter part of this month at the South Shore Country club, attracted 125 of the best trap shots in this region.

Carroll Breaks 100 Straight.

Scores ran exceptionally high, both in the Grand Chicago and in the 100 target preliminary, which was decided in the morning. In the after breakfast race C. A. Carroll ran off 100 straight "kills." Harvey Otter had 99, while Feesler, Kirby, Norton, and Grasper all notched 98, good enough to win any ordinary event.

Five tied at 96 for second honors in the handicap. Grasper and Burmeister, twenty-one yard men; Kammerer, twenty yards, and Clark and Kruger, nineteen yards, had that total. Mrs. A. H. Winkler, who shot from seventeen yards, upheld the honors for her sex by breaking 92 birds.

High Scores in Handicap.

Evans and Simpson Win Badger Red Cross Match

Milwaukee, Wis., July 1.—[Special.]—In a best ball thirty-six hole match, Chick Evans, with Jimmy Simpson, defeated Jock Hutchinson and Bob McDonald, staging the event for the benefit of the Red Cross at Blue Mound Country club. The course was soggy from rain. At the end of the morning play Simpson and Evans were 1 up, and ended 4 and 3. The best card of the morning was McDonald's 70. In the afternoon Simpson scored 69 and Evans 68.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 1.—Al Buckenberger, prominent in professional baseball circles ten years ago, died here tonight. He had been manager of the Boston, St. Louis, and Pittsburgh National teams.

Woods and Waters

WANTED: WOODCOCK FACTS.

THERE is a marked difference of opinion as to whether the woodcock is increasing or becoming scarcer, and the biological survey is now collecting data on this subject. If you know anything about these birds write the bureau of biological survey, Washington, D. C. Cover as thoroughly as possible the following points:

Have woodcocks increased or decreased in your vicinity in late years?

Do these birds breed in your vicinity?

What is your estimate of the number of woodcocks killed in your vicinity during the past year? What area is covered by this estimate?

Do you believe the species is threatened with extinction?

Do you advise protection of woodcock by a close season for a term of years?

Answers to these questions and any other facts concerning woodcock will be of much assistance to the survey, so if you can help do it now, while you think of it. The woodcock is a migratory bird and the more data the survey gets from different districts the better it will be able to judge what should be done to increase the supply of these strange and interesting birds—one of the finest game birds in the world.

If you can't answer these questions yourself perhaps you know a farmer or guide who can. If so clip this and send it to him with a request that he answer.

WILLARD WORTH OVER $500,000; $420,000 CASH

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Jess Willard, champion heavyweight pugilist, is worth between $500,000 and $600,000, of which amount $420,000 is in cash deposited in various banks throughout the country. One Chicago loop bank has an account of $90,000. Another has $60,000, and there is a third checking account in a neighborhood bank near where Jess lives. All this money was earned, or accumulated, if you choose, since Willard defeated Jack Johnson at Havana in twenty-six rounds on April 5, 1915.

These figures are furnished by Tom Jones. Tom, y' know, piloted Willard to the championship and was short circuited recently when the champion bought the circus with which he had been exhibiting and decided he did not need a partner for his financial joys and sorrows, principally joys, any longer. Jones arrived in Chicago yesterday, having motored from Buffalo, where the heartrending separation occurred.

Owed $10,175 in 1915.

After casting a balance following the acquisition of the title in 1915, Willard was $10,175 in debt, according to Jones. Heavy expenditures had been incurred in training due to the postponement and transfer of the bout from Juarez when Johnson showed a disinclination to go so near the United States, where he is a fugitive from justice. Since that time Willard's ring and circus earnings have been tremendous. His "take" on the circus percentage has gone over $5,000 in one week, according to Cherokee Tom.

Aside from Willard's cash he has 3,000 acres of farm land in the west, 600 acres in Michigan, four bungalows in Los Angeles, his home in Rogers Park, and various other material holdings.

Tom Jones Wants Some Coin.

Is Tom Jones angry at Willard for his summary dismissal? Well, to say the least, he is not pleased, and cites the fact that his contract, calling for 10 per cent of the Willard earnings, does not expire until Sept. 15. That 10 per cent Tom intends to get by legal action. He also, by advice of counsel, claims 10 per cent of the purses from any bouts he may arrange for Willard in his capacity of manager before Sept. 15, and holds Willard liable, likewise by advice of counsel, for failure to fulfill any matches or contracts made.

"I'm not going to be nasty in this matter and make matches just to stir up trouble," Jones explained last night, "but I want Willard to make good on any legitimate chance to earn money. I want what's coming to me and that's all. I have another contract with Willard for two years from Sept. 15 with 25 per cent of his earnings. Curley is not concerned with that. Jess signed it, but it's not witnessed by a notary. If Jess settles with me fairly I'll waive that. Then if he continues fighting for three years I'll guarantee to find a man to beat him.

Says He'll Get It, Too.

"I'm not talking about ingratitude or what I've done for Jess. That's part of the game. I simply want what I'm entitled to legally and I expect to get it."

Jones leaves this morning to visit a sick brother at Augusta, Ill.

Chicago Tennis Club Teams Annex Two League Matches

First and second division teams of the Chicago Tennis club won eighteen matches without losing one in their week-end series against two rivals in the Chicago Tennis association, making the Kenmore players favorites in the north section of the league. The first division team swept the matches against Mirequon on the latter's courts, and the second squad, playing at home, beat the Hamilton Park seconds just as overwhelmingly. In the first division affair the Chicago club dropped only one set in the entire nine matches. Summaries:

Singles—Colman, Chicago, beat Almond, Mirequon, 6—1, 6—1; Fisher, Chicago, beat Hoffman, 6—0, 6—1; Hall, Chicago, beat Chilton, Mirequon, 6—2, 6—1; Wiley, Chicago, beat Martin, Mirequon, 6—4, 6—1; Williams, Chicago, beat Ross, Mirequon, 6—2, 6—0; Gist, Chicago, beat Gerver, Mirequon, 6—0, 6—0.

Doubles—Colman and Hosford, Chicago, beat Almond and Martin, Mirequon, 6—2, 6—2; Wiley and Hall, Chicago, beat Ross and Gerver, Mirequon, 6—0, 6—0; Williams and Gist, Chicago, beat Ribbe and Carver, Mirequon, 6—2, 6—4.

Second Division

The feature match in the Chicago club's clean sweep over Hamilton Park seconds was the one in which Fabrice defeated Doumo. The south side park player won the first set, 11—9, but Fabrice came back by varying his smashes with lobs and placements and won the deciding sets, 6—3, 9—7. Summaries:

Singles—Tost, Chicago, beat Jones, Hamilton, 6—0, 6—0; Carstrom, Chicago, beat Shoup, Hamilton, 6—0, 6—1; Williams, Chicago, beat Wilson, Hamilton, 6—1; 6—1; Fabrice, Chicago, beat Bowne, Hamilton, 6—11, 9—7, 6—2; Hall, Chicago, beat McAlpin, Hamilton, 6—2, 6—2; Atkinson, Chicago, beat Pennell, Hamilton, 6—0, 6—0.

Joe Bishop, who was matched to meet Matt Brock at Nashville, Tenn., on July 4, broke his hand on Saturday while sparring with Walter Jacobson at the Arcade. Joe Thomas, manager for Bishop, is looking for a substitute to take south for the mill.

UPSET FEATURES STATE NET MEET FOR RED CROSS

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

H. Varias, former University High school tennis player, sprung a surprise in the Illinois patriotic tournament at the South Side club by eliminating H. B. Ingersoll of the home club, one of the consistent players in local tournaments for several seasons. Varias moved up two rounds in the day.

All matches in the preliminary and first rounds must be played, or the contestants show up, before 5 o'clock today or the contests will go by default. The state tourney has drawn the biggest entry list in the history of tournaments in this section, and officials found it necessary to draw rigid rules on defaults in order to finish the meet by next Sunday.

The second round in men's singles and first round in men's doubles will be played tomorrow, and women's matches in singles and doubles will start on Wednesday. One of the best matches yesterday was between W. H. Graves of the South Side club and Peter Peel, president of the United States Football association. Peel finally went down to defeat before the younger man, 7—5, 6—4.

Singles.

Preliminary round—H. H. Engel beat C. A. Kaufman, 6—2, 6—4; Graves beat Peel, 7—5, 6—4; Mission by default; W. Payne won from H. M. Goeder by default; R. V. Barker beat E. M. Cregin, 6—2, 6—3; R. L. Leydorf beat C. Miller, 6—3, 6—3; H. Varias beat C. Wicker, 6—2, 6—2; Ingersoll beat Varias, Grand Master, 6—4, 6—4; Wicker beat P. H. Miller, 6—4, 6—4; J. H. Riddel beat A. G. Arnold, 6—4, 6—4; J. Car Plunges Into Crowd, Injuring Many at Fair

Winona, Minn., July 1.—Nearly a score of persons were injured today when a high powered racing car, driven by Ed Kelley, Chicago sportsman, plunged through a fence and into a crowd of spectators watching a race program at the Tri-country fair grounds. Those injured were treated at the local hospitals. All will recover. Kelley was uninjured. The car, according to Kelley, blew a right tire while running behind.

MAC DUFFS CLOSE SOCCER SERIES WITH 2 TO 1 WIN

MacDuffs ended the season of league contests with a victory over Campbell Rovers, 2 goals to 1, on the players' field. At the end of the first half MacDuffs led, 1 to 0, on a goal by Alaich Paul, and the same player scored over the winning kick in the second half. Wilson scored for the Rovers. It was a league game, the match had no bearing on the race, which was settled several weeks ago.

Sixteen teams will play in the annual 6-mile soccer at the annual picnic of the Scots societies at Kolze's park, July 4. The teams will get into action at 9 o'clock in the morning, so that the race will be decided by eliminations.

Six track events will be run in the afternoon. The outing will be in the form of Clans MacDuff and Campbell. Prizes for the races will be given, and second, and third winners, and a handsome trophy will be awarded the winning clan in the relay. James Kermath won the 100-yard dash, the track entries, which start from 3311 South Keeler avenue.

Two Hundred Additional Applications for Membership in the Motor Club

Two hundred additional applications for membership in the newly organized Touring Club of America were received at a directors' meeting last week. Bronet Belfield, secretary of the Hotel Sherman company, was added to the directorate, taking the place of another director who found himself unable to serve.

An entire building, to be used exclusively as a used car store, will be opened by the Tennant Oakland company today at 2447 Michigan avenue. So far as any one knows, this establishment, which will occupy three floors, is the first of its kind on Michigan avenue.

Henry Ford is building 2,400 ambulances for the war department, the contract calling for a payment of $1,500,000. This is the first war order given by the government to Detroit automobile builders.

A "smiling mile," to be built upon the Lincoln highway in 1918, incidentally, the fourth in the highway's history, is being laid in Cook county. It is part of a four and a half mile stretch of improvement between Chicago Heights and Joliet, in Rich township, a section of road which has long been very poor.

A "smiling mile," as may be explained, is a standard concrete section built with consent supplied by the highway association for the purpose of encouraging by example the further building of permanent, all weather surfacing. In this case the pavement is of the most approved type, comprising an eighteen foot roadway, with six foot shoulders and a two inch crown, or elevation, in the center.

For the model mile 2,600 barrels of cement have been provided. The contract price for the entire stretch is $94,681, approximately $18,000 a mile. Automobile traffic over the Lincoln highway where this construction is under way is to be detoured over a marked road, and the work will be completed as fast as possible this year.

Bronet Belfield, secretary of the Hotel Sherman company, was added to the directorate, taking the place of another director who found himself unable to serve.

Red Crown Gasoline
Breaks Two World's Records

At the recent Auto Derby in Chicago, Ralph Mulford won the 100-mile and the 200-mile prizes—breaking two world's records—in fact he lead in the 250-mile race up to within 15 miles of the finish. A piece of bad luck in the nature of a blow-out forced him to stop at the pits for a new tire—even then he finished only 45 seconds late in a race that lasted two hours and twenty-five minutes.

According to the Chicago Tribune at the end of 150, and 200 miles, Mulford's time showed he had traveled those distances faster than ever man and motor went before.

Mulford made 150 miles in 1:26:49.4, and 200 miles in 1:55:11.15. His time in 250 miles was 102.5 miles per hour.

The Standard Oil Company Offers You the Same Gasoline

The gasoline Mulford used was not a special gas—it was Red Crown—the same gasoline you buy at any of our 500 filling stations or garages in Chicago and suburbs.

Every gallon you buy contains this same perfect range and adjustment of boiling point fractions as that which Mulford bought.

The chain of boiling point fractions commences at about 95 degrees Fahrenheit and continues without a gap beyond 400 degrees Fahrenheit, each fraction vaporizing at a different temperature.

BILL AND PEP SPOIL SUNDAY FOR OUR CUBS

Doak Blanks Us, 4-0, and Hornsby's Bat Wins the Game.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Bill Doak and Pep Hornsby of the Cardinal tribe conspired to lick the Cubs in the final game of the prolonged series which started last Tuesday in Bottleneck. The score was 4 to 0.

Doak applied the whitewash with the aid of invulnerable support, and Hornsby sealed out a three bagger in the first inning behind a safe bunt, scoring the only run needed to crown Doak's pitching with victory. The other three runs scored by the Cardinals were made on Cub errors. A bobble by Merkle let in the second man in the opening frame, and a low throw to first by Doyle paved the way to a pair of runs in the third.

Tough Luck for Douglas.

Phil Douglas, who started on the slab, was the victim of these tough breaks, and gave way in the home third to a pinch hitter. That brought Vic Aldridge to the task of the battle, and the youngster acquitted himself nobly in the interest of a lost cause.

For five innings Aldridge held the Cards to a single swat, giving his pals plenty of time to catch up if they had been able to transact any business with Doak. As they weren't, Aldridge's efforts went for naught except to prove that when he learns to start a game as brilliantly as he can finish one he will be a jewel. On account of the pauses taken out for another pinch hitter and the sights, permitting Sexton to finish the scrap.

Good Fielding Foils Cubs.

The Cubs made as many safeties off Doak as the Cardinals rang up off our three chalkmen, but they could not connect. Besides, they were stopped by some unusual feats of fielding. Miller and Hornsby engineered a double killing in the seventh that was not only notable but nullifying.

Miller lifted off a hot grounder from Williams' bat and started a double play boustrand by touching first and winging the ball to second. The throw beat Merkle, who had been on first, and Hornsby had the presence of mind to tag him, instead of merely catching the ball and claiming a force play, as some major leaguers have done within recent memory. If Miller had tried the double play by pegging to second base first he would have lost it because of Williams' speed.

Seven Cubs reached first base off Doak, five of them on stick work and two on passes. Not one of them lived to see second, consequently the changes on the sacks were at a discount. All except two of the locals who reached first got there after two were out.

Sad Story of First Round.

The Cardinals won the game in the first round, but didn't know it, of course. Jack Smith dumped a bunt toward third and beat it by half a paragraph. Baird sacrificed and Long bounded out, but Hornsby jammed a liner through left center for three bases, giving Smith a chance to walk home. Cruise scratched a roller toward first and Merkle fumbled it in his eagerness to make the play himself, as Douglas was slow in covering. Hornsby scored. Cruise was nailed stealing.

With one down in the third, Jack Smith again started trouble with a bounder, which Doyle copped, only to make a low throw to first, giving the runner his life. Baird followed with a stinger to left on which Smith raced to third. Baird taking second on the throw. Merkle grabbed Long's rap and retired the side without letting the runners stir, but Hornsby soaked out a single long enough to score Smith and Baird. Cruise ended the side out.

Notes of the Cubs

Pittsburgh today.

The Cardinals left town with a record of five out of the eight games played in the series just closed.

Four games with the Reds, including a pair of holiday scraps on the Fourth, will wind up the home stay of the Wilds.

Killefer made two-fifths of the hits off Doak and emerged with a perfect batting average by getting a base on balls the third time up.

Jensen stung a stinger toward left in the first inning, but Baird was in line with it and pinched the thing an inch over the dirt.

Baird performed the feature play defensively when he copped a Texas leaguer off from Flack in the fourth. The latter had carried the ball back so far that Baird barely reached it over his head, then turned a complete somersault, winding up on his off ear. He held the ball, however.

President Weegman announced the purchase of a new first baseman named Guy Leslie from Waco. Leslie's early speeds somewhat on the virility of the Texas club, which is reported to be ready to quit after the Fourth, in which case room may be made for the youngster on the Cub squad.

HEAVES BY CICOTTE TOSS 5 TO 4 COMBAT TO CLEVELAND CLUB

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Cleveland, O., July 1.—[Special.]—The White Sox were far from their championship stride again and lost another game of ball which should have been an easy victory. The score was 5 to 4 in favor of Cleveland, when it ought to have been about 6 to 1 in favor of Chicago. The little fine points of baseball, the things which should be handled properly by any major league team, were bungled terribly by the Sox, and the Indians were simply handed the game.

At the end of the seventh round the Sox still had a splendid chance for the game, then tied 3 to 2, and it seemed only a question of time before they would drive in the winning run. They almost got it in the eighth, but got the bad end of a close decision at the home plate, and then in the last of the eighth Eddie Cicotte hims lf, our gallant little hurler, flung the game away with abandon.

This Is Awful Stuff.

Cicotte started that round by walking O'Neil, and Howard went out to run the bases. Coumbe dumped a bunt right down to Cicotte and there was an easy force play at second, but he shot the ball so wide and high it got away from Risberg and both men were safe. Graney then dumped a bunt toward third and Cicotte handled it and flung it clear over Gandil's head to the pavilion, letting Howard score, while Coumbe went to third and Graney to second.

With the infield drawn in, Chapman poked a measly little Texas leaguer just over second base for a single and both Coumbe and Graney came home. Three runs were in and the ball game was shotell.

So Near, Yet So Far.

The Sox instituted a revival in the ninth, however, and almost tied it. With one out, Lynn walked. Schalk batted for Cicotte. Coumbe had slightly injured a finger and was wild. Instead of giving him a chance to walk a lot of people, Schalk tried to hit the first ball, which he figured would be a cripple. He popped up to Roth. Then John Collins waited and walked without any trouble. Buck Weaver followed with a screaming drive over Graney's head for two sacks, sending Lynn and J. Collins home, and only one more blow needed to tie the count. In this pinch Eddie Collins died on a bounder to Wamby.

It was a tough defeat for the Sox, but they didn't play baseball and they didn't show much fight. They poled twelve hits and made little use of them. Cleveland made only six off Eddie, but they came out with one run to the good.

Bobby Roth Steals Home.

Guy Morton started as hurler for the Indians, but wasn't right and retired after three innings, Coumbe taking the job. The Sox made six hits off Morton in three innings, but didn't accomplish much with them. The Indians did just as much business with two made off Cicotte in the first. After two were out, Speaker singled and Roth followed with a fly against the short right field wall. It should have been held to a single, but Jackson played it badly, letting it bound back into the field for a triple, which scored Speaker. Then Roth stole home.

Yanks to Give Red Cross 10 Per Cent of a Series

New York, July 1.—Owners of the New York Yankees will donate to the Red Cross 10 per cent of receipts of all games of the series between the Yankees and Washington, including a double header on July 4.

Five Per Cent of Amateur Cup Funds to Red Cross

President Tearney of the Amateur Baseball Managers' league called a special meeting of the board of directors, who decided to give 5 per cent of the gate receipts of the Tearney trophy and Sweitzer cup games to the Red Cross.

Notes

Cleveland, O., July 1.—[Special.]—One more game here tomorrow and then the Sox move over to Detroit.

The crowd was estimated at 16,000, and there would have been a lot more but for a rain in the morning, which undoubtedly stopped those from the nearby towns who pour into Cleveland for the Sunday games.

The quartet from the Minnesota naval reserves was on hand again and made a tremendous hit with the crowd. When time was called and the rain ceased the crowd yelled for a song, so the boys went out by second base and megaphoned harmony to all present.

Hap Felsch had two singles, a triple, and a sacrifice fly in four trips to the plate. His triple deserved a run in the eighth. One was out, and Gandil followed with a hopper to Wamby. Hap dug for the plate after Wamby threw to first, but Harris shot home and got him, according to Brick Owens. From the press stand he looked safe.

Manager Pohl of the Indians thinks he stopped Cicotte from throwing the shine ball, and because of that won the game. He stated after the game that his kick on it in the first inning stopped further use of the phoney delivery. To us it looked as if Eddie pitched just the same as usual, or perhaps a bit better. Pohl's men made only six hits and won the game on errors.

A terrific but short thunder storm broke over Cleveland while the first half of the fifth inning was being played. Umpire Owens made the boys play out that half so the clubs could keep the gate money, but when Jackson flied to left field for the third out it was poring down. In ten minutes it was all over, the sun was out, and the game was resumed. Canvas was rushed out when time was called, but the rain was over before it was placed.

BROOKLYN REVIVES SUNDAY BALL WITH WAR CAUSE CONTEST

New York, July 1.—Baseball fans estimated to number 10,000 attended a patriotic concert in Brooklyn baseball park this afternoon given for the benefit of the Militia of Mercy and other war organizations. After the concert there was a game between Brooklyn and Philadelphia, which was won by the home team, 3 to 2.

It was the first Sunday National league game in Brooklyn in ten years. No admission was charged for the ball game and the sale of tickets was stopped when the players took the field for their preliminary practice.

One of the features was the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by 800 sailors from the navy yard. The crowd joined in the chorus. The attendance was disappointing. Score:

U. S. INQUIRES INTO 15 DEATHS ON WHALEBACK

Three More Bodies Recovered from River—Seeks to Fix Blame.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 1.—[Special.]—Federal inquiry into the Christopher Columbus accident on Saturday afternoon, and which thus far has cost the lives of fifteen people—three more victims having been recovered from the Milwaukee river today—was begun this afternoon by Capt. F. W. Van Patten, local inspector of hulls for the United States department of commerce and labor.

All licensed officers on the Christopher Columbus and the two tugs which were towing the excursion boat at the time of the accident are being questioned by Capt. Van Patten and W. A. Collins, local government inspector of boilers and machinery, in an effort to determine the exact cause of the accident and to fix the responsibility.

The investigation is strictly private, no one but the witnesses being allowed in the room while it is going on.

Report to Redfield.

After all the evidence has been heard the findings of the inquiring body will be reported to Secretary of Labor and Commerce William C. Redfield at Washington. He will then make public the result of the investigation. Attorney Charles E. Kremar of Chicago, representing the Goodrich lines, sat in an anteroom while the inquiry was going on, but was denied admission to the inquiry.

Those called before the inquiring body this afternoon were: Capt. Charles Moody; Arthur Miller, first mate; Charles Chilka, second mate; James Brodie, wheelsman; George McLaughlin, chief engineer, and Julius Schneider, first assistant engineer, all licensed officers of the Christopher Columbus. The captains of both tugs, the Welcome and the Knight Templar, will testify tomorrow.

More Bodies Found.

Two more bodies were taken from the river during the day. This swells the total of dead to fifteen, with the possibility of more being added, as no effort has yet been made to raise the huge water tank, which lies at the bottom of the river, and which, it is believed, is pinning down the bodies of more victims.

The last of the victims were identified today. They are:

Adelia Swanson, Chicago.

Goodrich Officers Confer.

A. W. Goodrich, president of the Goodrich line, and H. W. Thorpe, vice president and general manager, arrived in Milwaukee early today and conferred with the local officers of the company.

Both refused to make any formal statement, but stated that they had come here to assist in every way possible. They returned to Chicago late this afternoon, after having given instructions that everything possible was to be done for the welfare of the injured.

While waiting in an ante-room in the federal building before going in to testify before the federal inquiry board, Capt. Charles Moody of the Christopher Columbus stated the mishap was as accident, pure and simple. He refused to place the blame on any one and attributed the accident to the abnormally strong current in the river at the time.

Excursionists Crowd Pier.

Despite Saturday's accident to the huge excursion ship, fully 200 people lined the docks of the Goodrich company this morning expecting to embark on the boat on its return trip to Chicago. When officials of the company asked if they had heard of the accident they said that they had, but expected that the boat would be ready to resume its duties today.

Charles Hubbard Judd, director of the school of education of the University of Chicago, and his assistant, George O. Fairweather, arrived in Milwaukee early this morning. Mr. Judd said he had come in an endeavor to be of assistance to the injured university students and to help the relatives of the dead.

"I want to do all I can for the university students who were injured in this accident and to assist the relatives of those who were killed," said Mr. Judd. "I visited all of the injured students, and they seem to be getting along nicely."

Mr. Judd said he would endeavor to make a complete canvas of all university summer students who made the trip which ended so disastrously, in an effort to determine if any more are missing.

Three Weeks for Repairs.

According to local officials of the Goodrich company, the Christopher Columbus will be out of commission for the next three weeks, as it will take fully that time to repair the damage done to the boat. The financial loss to the company will easily amount to $50,000 by the mere fact of the big excursion boat being out of service for that length of time. The company is fully protected by its accident insurance. According to officials, this is the first loss of life on any of the Goodrich boats in thirty-seven years.

Coroner Frank Luehring has decided not to hold an inquest for a day or so, as he thinks that the tank is still pinning several bodies down. He will wait until divers raise the tank and all chance of the further recovery of bodies is eliminated. It is generally understood that there will be no other inquiries other than that now being held by the federal authorities and the coroner.

THE CAPTAIN'S STORY

Capt. Charles Moody of the whaleback Christopher Columbus, aboard which fifteen persons were killed and many injured by an accident in the Milwaukee river Saturday, told his story of the catastrophe yesterday.

"The accident was due to the heavy current which was running down river, and since which I have learned from the government officials, was going at the rate of over six miles an hour, this being caused by the recent heavy rains which have occurred in these regions," said Capt. Moody.

"Any report that there was any friction between me and the captain of the tug Knight Templar just before the accident is pure fabrication. Both tugs did all they could to avert the accident.

"I saw that the Christopher Columbus was drifting toward the warehouse and the tank, and I yelled to the tug to stop it, and it immediately began efforts to avoid the impending crash. As soon as I saw that we were not stopping I gave the orders to reverse the engine with full speed. I know, however, that by so doing I would back my ship into the bridge spanning the river astern of me, perhaps damaging the rudder and steering gear, but I preferred to sacrifice any part of my ship rather than jeopardise the lives of my passengers."

Shouted a Warning.

"Immediately after my order to reverse with full speed, the second mate rang the alarm as he realised that we would back into the bridge. When I saw her stick her nose into the iron underpinnings of the water tank I yelled to the people to get back. They were too busy, it seemed, waving farewells to the crowds which lined the bridge and river bank, to pay any attention to my warning.

"As the tank rocked back and forth and then crumpled and crashed on to the bow of the boat I jumped to the starboard entrance of the pilot house, and Jim Brodie, the wheelsman, leaped to the port side entrance. Then came the crash. As soon as it was over I looked to the spot where Brodie had been standing and there was nothing but a huge hole there. My first thought was 'Jim's dead.'

"I crawled around forward of the pilot house and on the starboard side and there was Jim, sitting in a chair holding his head in his hands.

Believed Captain Dead.

"'Hello, Cap! I thought you was a gonner, sure,' said Brodie as he caught sight of me. 'We had better get busy, Cap, as a lot of people have been killed.'

"Somebody yelled 'Man overboard!' at that moment, and I rushed out on the deck and ordered them to lower a boat. The sailors are all deep sea men from the Atlantic coast and went right about their business when I gave the order, I ordered the forward work boat lowered and they began picking up the people out of the water. There was no panic, only silence prevailed. I think I would have felt better if somebody had yelled.

"Both passengers and crew behaved in splendid fashion. When I docked the boat at the first spot I could the engineer told me that he had got my signal 'Astern—full speed,' and was 'putting her to it' when the crash came, and he only stopped his engines when the signal apparatus indicated the bridge was out of commission."

Capt. Moody is a typical seafaring man, 6 feet 2 inches in height, with sandy hair and a weatherbeaten face showing evidence of a thousand and one trips on the great lakes.

FUNERAL PLANS FOR WHALEBACK VICTIMS MADE

Bodies of U. of C. Students Will Be Taken to Their Homes.

The body of Miss Eva Eatman, one of the residents of Chicago who lost their lives in the accident to the Christopher Columbus, was brought to Chicago last night by her stepmother, Mrs. Etta Eatman, and will be sent to Grenada, Miss., the family home, as soon as a sister, Miss Edna Eatman, arrives from Boston.

E. C. Higbie, 6021 Woodlawn avenue, with whom Miss Alto Roberts and Miss Bertha Parsons resided, has communicated with their relatives, and last night awaited instructions regarding the disposal of their bodies. Miss Roberts was 24 years old and came here two weeks ago from her home in Morrill, Kas., to attend the summer course at the University of Chicago. She was a graduate of the Kansas Agricultural college.

Student at U. of C.

Miss Parsons came to Chicago last April from her home in Fahrmansville, Ia. She was 23 years old and was taking the undergraduate course at the University of Chicago.

The body of Alfred B. Murray was identified by his brother, Andrew J. Murray, with whom he resided at 4023 Vincennes avenue. He was 23 years old and was employed as a salesman by the Quaker Oats company. Saturday was the last day of his vacation, and he planned to return to work today. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

In Serious Condition.

Mrs. Hannah McGriff, who is dangerously hurt, lived alone at 812 Hyde Park boulevard. Her husband is dead, but she has a son and daughter, the latter a professional nurse, and two sisters in Milwaukee. Her daughter is said to be in Los Angeles, Cal.

The body of Mrs. Blanche Copper of La Cygne, Kas., will be taken to the home of her parents at Cherokee, Kas., by her husband, who was with her on the boat but who escaped injury. Mr. and Mrs. Copper also were attending the University of Chicago.

Woman Examining Gun Shoots Her Husband

A revolver which Mrs. Hazel Rabar of 900 Winona avenue was examining was accidentally discharged last evening and the bullet struck her husband, Albert Rabar, in the right side.

KANSAN'S SHAVE COSTS HIM $5 IN SOME LOOP SHOP

He was from Salina, Kans., and he was on his way to see Niagara falls.

It was the first time Norman Ellsworth Stafford had ever been more than seven miles away from Salina. He arrived in Chicago yesterday morning, and was roped into a barber shop, "somewhere in the loop." He was unable to tell just where.

"I'm pretty sure there was a barber pole in front of the shop," he told Lieut. Madden of the South Clark street station, "and I know that the street cars passed right by the door.

"A man with a checked coat was standin' in the doorway. He said 'Come right in, stranger, you're next.'

"Seein' as how I needed a shave I went in and climbed into a chair. When I got out they handed me a bill for $5. I said I'd see them in h— before I'd pay it, and one of the barbers pulled a gun on me. Well, I paid."

Shave, State street style	$ .25
Extra hot towels	.25
Hair combed latest style	.15
Hair cut, London style	.50
Egg shampoo, New York style	.75
Mustache trimmed, city style	.20
Massage, Egyptian style	.50
Shoe shine, Chicago style	.15
Checking suit case	.25
Medical advice	1.50
Imported witch hazel and bay rum	.50
Total	5.00

"What is the medical advice?" asked the lieutenant.

"I'll be hanged if I know," said the man from Kansas, "unless it was when I asked him what was good for a cold in the head. The barber told me."

PROF. MEAD'S SON, ONLY 3, IS FOUND EXPLORING CITY

Meredith Mead, the 3 year old son of Prof. G. H. Mead of the University of Chicago, who started out Saturday morning for a personally conducted tour of Chicago, was found Saturday evening near the Stanton avenue police station and was returned to his parents, at 5730 Drexel avenue. The lad did not explain how he had spent the day, but was tired and hungry. He had been left alone in the back yard for a little while and decided to see some of the sights of the city on his own hook. His parents and the police put in the day looking for him.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Morris Conway, alias "Deafy," alias Charles Baker, and Charles Boys were arrested yesterday on a street car. They are being held for investigation of their recent activities. In their possession the police found $195.

STRANGERS HORN IN AND GRAB OFF A NICE $600 POT

Three Automatically Filled Hands 'Bust' Up South Side Session.

It was at Peck Sharp's 'bacca shop, where business men abide.

Six reputable business men of the neighborhood—Peck's cigar store is at 216 East Thirty-fifth street, teh center of a nice, timid section—were engaged in games of whist, pinochle, and lotto in the room between the back room and the store.

It was 5:20 a. m. yesterday, and Peck himself was dealing the kyards. The faces of the six business men were expressionless, as is the case in whist and such games. The game had been proceeding since 2 a. m. The men were bridge fiends. In front, the store was darkened. One does not like to be interrupted during a tense moment in lotto.

Strangers Show.

One of the six business men was heard to make the cryptic remark:

"Let's make it deuces wild."

At that moment there was a knock at the door. The six business men started, looked apprehensively at Peck. Peck arose, went through the store, opened the door and admitted three young men.

"We'd like to buy some cigars," said one, a well dressed man of about 28 years.

Forthwith they followed Peck to the room in which the gaming was going on. Peck recommenced to deal. The six business men picked up their cards.

His Psychic Gift.

"We will!" said the 28 year old one. The six b. m. looked up. Peck looked up. Immediately thereafter he began to figure how many years—including the nine he was manager for Al Tearney, who conducts a reputable cafe in the neighborhood—it took him to save the money with which to buy the $300 stickpin he wore. He had a dim notion he was to part with it in the near future. He was psychically gifted.

For the young men had three black-O, so black—automatics. Each automatic had the knack of covering two men at the same time. All three included Peck in their deadly focus.

It appears that in the lotto, whist, and pinochle tournaments there were $600 involved. When the young men left they had the $600, and they had Mr. Sharp's blazing stickpin, which it took him seventeen years of self-denial to acquire.

The Six Tired B. M.

Thereupon rose the six business men, to wit:

C. B. Wallop.
"Jim" Hammond.
"Daddy" Howard.
"Al" Sales.
"Charlie the Kid" Nimmo.
"Doc" Andrews.

Led by the sorrowful Peck, they adjourned forthwith to the Stanton avenue police station and poured forth their woe to the stoic desk sergeant.

And the police, as ever, are looking for the three young men, the leader of whom was well dressed and about 28.

CONGRESS HOTEL DEATH PROVES RIDDLE TO POLICE

Investigation into the death of Henry Levy, a wealthy Indianapolis furniture manufacturer, who fell or leaped from the window of his room on the fifth floor of the Congress hotel early yesterday, failed to reveal the exact manner of the fatality. The body was found lying in Congress street. Levy had registered on Saturday and appeared to be in good spirits. He was last seen about the lobby at 11 o'clock. He was well known to employes of the hotel, as he made frequent business trips to Chicago. There will be an inquest today. A note addressed to Paul E. Cornelius, one of Levy's employes, who was occupying another room in the hotel, was found pinned to Levy's clothing in the room.

Boy Hit by Stray Bullet.

Nicholas Smith, 14 years old, 1718 Wellington avenue, while playing near the Northwestern tracks yesterday was struck in the thigh by a stray bullet. The police were unable to learn who fired the shot.

CHILD KILLED BY AUTO; MANY CARS IN COLLISIONS

Sampel Guerrero, 8 years old, 512 North Peoria street, was run down by an automobile in front of his home last night. His skull was fractured and he died a little later. Louis Moorad, 788 Milwaukee avenue, the driver of the car, was held.

A. B. Hughes, 4311 Greenwood avenue, by mistake threw on the accelerator instead of the brake of his automobile when crossing Marquette road at Greenwood avenue yesterday. The result was that two automobiles struck his machine. One was driven by William Loessel, 6405 South Racine avenue, and the other by Lewis Jesselson, 614 East Fiftieth street. Hughes' car also struck bicycles ridden by Andrew Jordan, 5312 Dorchester avenue, and Jerome Lynch. The bicycles and Mr. Jesselson's car were wrecked. No one was seriously hurt.

Joseph Hock, 23 years old, 543 North Oak Park avenue, and his brother, Albert, 17 years old, were thrown from an automobile which overturned at Washington boulevard and Lombard avenue. Neither was seriously hurt.

Mrs. Martha Satkuliak, 32 years old, 10726 Forest avenue, was injured when she was struck by a motorcycle driven by George Williamson, 11244 Stephenson avenue, at One Hundred and Seventh street and Indiana avenue.

SHERIFF'S MEN FAIL TO FIND ONE SPEEDER

Speeding on the Milwaukee highway, the Park Ridge road, and the Niles-Wheeling highway cooled down to normal yesterday under the benign influence of twenty-four deputy sheriffs under Sheriff Traeger, ten deputy coroners, and half a dozen motorcycle policemen.

Coroner Hoffman and Sheriff Traeger cooperated with Chief Schuettler in eliminating the speeders, and as a result not an accident occurred throughout the day.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

The Tribune, in a story having to do with Dr. M. Meinhart, said that he resides at 4111 Grand boulevard. This was a typographical mistake; his address is 4117.

A reader objects to Mr. McCutcheon's drawing of a railroad ticket in last Friday's cartoon, which was intended to show the journey of the American soldier to France and return. Mr. McCutcheon put the various coupons of the ticket in the reverse order used by railroad companies. The proper place for the coupon covering the first stage of the trip should have been at the bottom of the ticket and the one covering the return journey at the top.

BARBER STRIKE STARTS TODAY; BOMBS FEARED

More dynamite bombs, window smashing expeditions, and similar tactics, as applied to barber shop proprietors who let prices remain where they are and also employ nonunion help, are looked for by the police today, when a barbers' strike is scheduled to start.

"The price of haircutting shall be not less than 35 cents," reads a portion of a new agreement that all proprietors will be asked to sign by the union representatives.

The new agreement, which was indorsed yesterday by the Chicago Federation of Labor, also provides for a guarantee of "not less than $17 and 50 per cent over $25, steady; $11 and 50 per cent over $14, evenings, Saturday, and Sunday, and $7 and 50 per cent over $9, days, Saturday, and Sunday."

Boy Accidentally Shot with Rifle by Playmate

LADY GIVES A. M. INFORMAL PARTY AND GETS A RIDE

Mrs. Harry Bonsell Phipps of 2654 Grand boulevard entertained roguishly at about 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning in honor of Sergt. Charles Turk and a number of his compatriots, who are associated in the social world with Mrs. Herman S[illegible] chief, the well known club man.

It was considered quite droll that Sergt. Turk should delay his arrival, but he said he didn't mind it at all because three men, said to be wealthy business men, and three young women, several seasons out, were already making the welkin ring.

When Sergt. Turk rang and the door was opened, Mrs. Phipps chided him for the lateness of the hour.

"You ought to know better than to raid me," she said. "I'll get a jury trial and sell this place to niggers if I have to."

"Let's all take a little ride," chirped Sergt. Turk. "Beastly jolly, and all that, you know."

At first the guests demurred, but finally all skipped blithely into the large, blue limousine provided by the generous Sergt. Turk, and all drove to the Stanton avenue police station, for a bit of a lark, as one might say.

The names of the three business men didn't come out, because Mrs. Phipps, coyly giving her name as Mrs. Grace Wicks, scheduled her own property for bonds and all went away again.

Dame Rumor hath it that some of the front city hall families may leave for the summer if the case comes to trial.

Barber Shop Chord 'Bust'; the Orchestra Has Flown

Henry Keidel is called the "silent barber." It is said he is the only tonsorialist in Chicago who can operate a razor without using his vocal cords. Therefore, this story is pathetic.

Keidel has always owned a flock of canary birds that sing while he shaves—forty-three of 'em. Last night he left his shop, at 1216 Sedgwick street, for three minutes. When he returned his aviary had vanished. He has appealed to the police.

STYLISH 'DOPE FIENDS' BARED IN RAID OF FLAT

"Blue Book" Lists Sixty Fashionables; Five Arrests.

Fashionable drug addicts, listed in a "Blue Book of Morphine," came under police scrutiny yesterday when a luxurious rendezvous at 111 East Forty-sixth street, devoted to the automobile trade, was raided.

More than $1,000 worth of morphine, cocaine and heroin was confiscated and turned over to the federal authorities. Four men, one a dentist and another a druggist, and one woman were arrested.

Jewelry, rich dresses and other articles of clothing, which the police are inclined to believe the proceeds of burglaries, were taken. Evidence was uncovered leading James L. Mooney, chief of the detective bureau, to suspect that a drug store in Burr Oak, the village recently raided by State's Attorney Hoyne as a hive of criminality, is concerned with the traffic in drugs.

Taken as Dispensers.

A WOMAN, 22 years old, giving her name as Mrs. T. J. Farrell, of 4000 Washington boulevard, held by the police to have posed as a nurse.

DR. JOSEPH KIPPERT, 37 years old, 3129 South Wabash avenue, a dentist, who declares he has nothing to do with the morphine ring.

HORACIO T. A. BRANT, 33 years old, who gave the raided flat as his address. He claimed to be in plate market.

ANDREW ORWAN, 32 years old, 3145 Indiana avenue, claiming to be a peddler and held by the police to have served a prison sentence.

Names of Sixty Listed.

It was in the possession of Dr. Kippert the police found the "Blue Book of Morphine." Listed in it were the names of more than sixty Chicagoans believed to have patronized the Forty-sixth street rendezvous. The police have refused to make public the names.

The first arrests were made on Saturday at 1 o'clock by inspectors McFarland and O'Connor of the bureau near the Haymarket building on Madison and Halsted. An automobile drove up. Out of it stepped Dr. Kippert and Conway. Both were arrested and taken before Chief Mooney of the bureau.

While Mooney is unable to determine whether the jewelry and dresses found in the apartment raided later are the proceeds of robberies or have been taken in exchange for drugs, he found in the possession of Conway a watch which later was discovered to have been stolen from the apartment of Earle B. Doty of 6041 Kimbark avenue. Jewelry valued at $500 was taken in this robbery while the Dotys were away at church.

Notebook Gives Clew.

According to Chief Mooney the address of the Forty-sixth street flat was taken from a note book found in the dentist's pocket. The two detectives who made the arrests, accompanied by Detectives Maagna and Dorney, were sent to the "supply house."

There was a short, swift struggle. The woman, Brady, and Nolan attempted to escape, but were overpowered when they discovered all exits watched. On a couch was found a woman drug addict so deep in the dope she could not be aroused.

The woman calling herself Mrs. Farrell was locked in the annex of the Hyde Park station, but later released. Later in the evening a woman telephoned to The Tribune saying she was Mrs. Farrell and that she had just heard her name had been appropriated by the woman taken in the raid. She denied knowing anything of the matter.

Following upon the first raid, another flat, this one in South Park avenue, was entered and a quantity of morphine and jewelry taken. Detectives believe both flats have been operated as drug supply stations and stealing houses for thieves.

THREE PERISH IN UNDERTOW

Kenosha, Wis., July 1.—[Special.]—Three bathers, caught by the undertow, were drowned on the beach here today. A fourth narrowly escaped drowning. The dead:

LANCE BOWMAN, 21 years old, an English boxer.

WALTER JENSEN, 18 years old, a Kenosha machinist.

Bowman and his wife, expert swimmers, were a considerable distance from shore when the undertow caught them. Jensen, who was on the beach with his wife and three children, heard Mrs. Bowman's cry for help. He swam out to the rescue.

While Jensen was struggling with Mrs. Bowman all three went down and were not seen again.

Song Experts Due in Court at Tone Suit

A corps of song writers, music critics and other harmony experts is to appear in Judge Gridley's court this morning to help his honor decide whether Miss Georgia De Fren Bryson or Frederick L. Ryder wrote "Rose Time," and Mr. Ryder's music appears on the cover of the song, but Miss Bryson contends it is theirs by a bill of forty-eleven, and that was sold to three music publishers.

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

BY CORINNE LOWE.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The present game of dress is much like jackstraws. It is what we take away and not what we leave that really counts. Our ideal of looking well is the spare, draped from the shoulder lady of the Egyptian silhouette, that funny lady with the hands at right angles who must have got sunburned palms every time she talked.

So many of the new afternoon frocks are, for instance, of crêpe de chine or satin, cut in one piece and tied with a sash (the one thing that emits a bag into a dress seems to be the girdle). And if not in this mode, we have the perfectly straight, frequently plaited skirt with the simple, natural waistline. The barrel and peg-top are still seen and the new fur coats which the forehanded manufacturers is making up for fall are often rolled out in the tonneau shape. Nevertheless, the one insistent mode is the straight line.

Naturally, our undergarments must do nothing to contradict that illusion.

New lingerie which has just come from the other side is made principally of crêpe de chine, Georgette, and triple voile. Little lace is used in these, but ribbons and delicate hemstitching and lovely embroidery are the mode of the hour. A novelty in the last named is bead embroidery—flesh color Georgette may, for instance, strike up a tune of coral beads. But, in spite of this, the most of us American women refuse to yield our laces to any foreign potentate of fashion, and in the combination shown today white crêpe de chine is finished with fine white lace.

By Miss Tabb.

I USUALLY want to strongly advise those who enjoy good things to see George Beban's pictures. Regarding his present release, "A Roadside Impresario," my advice is the same—"go to it"—you'll love it.

Though not dependent on plot, Mr. Beban's natural pantomime is usually accompanied by plot. In the present cast an interesting story, a combination of whimsical humor and tender pathos, unfolds. You meet the hero first accompanied by a trained bear, delighting the youths that surge around him on his journey.

It develops that he is not an aimless wanderer, but a "papa" wistfully searching the world for his "bambino" who, many years ago in sunny Italy has been snatched from him by almost unbelievably cruel circumstances.

"The Roadside Impresario" becomes involved willy-nilly in a darksome muddle of political intrigue, in which he proves himself a hero, discovers his daughter—to whom he may not reveal himself, as she is rich and happy, which happiness would not be increased to find herself the child of a wandering Italian. His renunciation of her is wonderfully pathetic, and it is through dim eyes that you watch him accompanied by his lumbering companion go slowly over the hills and vanish from the picture.

You should see "A Roadside Impresario," because it is art combined with genuine humanity.

Carmen.

WHEN I was studying music in Boston I met a girl who was studying singing in the same school. She had a wonderful voice and was being trained for church singing. Because of her dark hair and eyes and her clear olive skin, which gave her a Spanish appearance, we all called her "Carmen."

She was a queer girl. At times she would carry us all away with her gayety and fun and enthusiasm. Then suddenly she would sink into a fit of depression that would last for weeks and would barely speak to any one, not even to me, who was her most intimate friend.

During my second year my cousin, a lawyer in Maine, came to Boston to attend a musical play I had written and in which "Carmen" took the leading part. He fell in love with her at once, I think. A man of quick decision and great determination, he immediately began trying to win her. He frequently came to Boston to see her and wrote constantly. At first she seemed bewildered. Then, in every way possible she tried to discourage his attentions, and when, in spite of her attitude he asked her to marry him. She refused.

Soon after I went hurriedly into her room and found her crying over his letters. I demanded an explanation and without a word she went to her trunk, unlocked it, and taking out a photograph, handed it to me. I looked down and saw a picture of a good looking mulatto woman and two little Negro children.

Confused, I looked up. "That's my mother and step-brothers," she said. Of course that was the end. Next day she left Boston, and neither my cousin nor I have ever seen her since. S. H.

Yes, Betty, of Course.

"Dear Miss Blake: If I send you a stamped, addressed envelope will you send me the stamp language?

"BETTY."

Wilson Selects War Film Chief

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—At the request of President Wilson, William A. Brady, president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry of the United States, has undertaken the task of organizing the movies for war service in conjunction with the committee on public information.

Mr. Brady said he could assure the president of the undivided, conscientious, and patriotic support of the entire industry in America.

In offering the task to Mr. Brady the president said:

"The film has come to rank as the very high medium for the dissemination of public intelligence, and since it speaks a universal language it lends itself importantly to the presentation of America's plans and purposes.

"May I ask you, as chairman by my appointment, to organize the motion picture industry in such a manner as to establish direct and authoritative cooperation with the committee on public information?"

Does City Canning Pay?

THIS number of the food conservation series, with its twenty-six little slogans grouped under the heading "Do Canny," brought the following letter from a correspondent who signs herself "One of Your Readers." Since it is a letter seeking help and offering along a valuable suggestion, it reads:

"We are told in the papers, magazines, etc., to be canny, which in itself should appeal to my Scotch blood, but I have been asking myself and now ask you, if it really pays the housewife without a garden to buy vegetables to can. Some years ago I canned some string beans and did not have any spoil, but prices now seem so much higher that 'I has me doots.' Tomatoes I always can, and did you ever try to use the strup and molasses cans with the covers you pry up? I have found that I could put tomatoes when they were hot in these cans, put the cover on, and then use sealing wax to insure their being air tight. Is it the late and wet season that keeps berries up? It seems to me that it would be better to put up money into something else, with sugar so high. Are the people in the country canning everything and making a scarcity here in the city? I have a good many jars and cans that might be filled, but does it pay? Can you help us?"

We are facing a problematical food future. We rarely eat as many vegetables as we should. Canning a quantity of vegetables is insuring our health, if not our pocketbooks. Most of the home products are much finer than the commercial articles, especially such things as spinach and beets. The first is often obtainable very cheap and beets will drop to a cent or two a bunch probably.

The canning movement has had its main impetus in the last few years in connection with the tenth of an acre gardening of the boys and girls. Hundreds of people who have planted gardens this year hope to sell some of their product. These gardens are in our midst. If we are "canny" in the Scotch sense, we will hunt out some of these and make a contract to take certain of their products. It will be profitable on both sides.

There is one mistake some of the commercial confectionery makes. They discover people buying on a small scale just what those people would pay at the stores, and all the latter gain is the penny fees gathered. The private cook is to forget the cost of getting their products to market and the low prices they sometimes take from those who buy at wholesale.

I believe it will pay to can, and I also believe that before the summer is over we shall be able to buy perennial fruits and stuff from gardens, if we will go to them. Just sometimes we do not realize how fresh the early morning supplies are in our stores. Buy spinach by the basketful to make up profitable orders which include sugar.

Thin or Hefty, Go in Bathing If You Choose

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

FATTY! HOW FOOLISH! WHY not go in swimming? If only Annette K.'s were eligible for beach parade I'm afraid there wouldn't be many footsteps on the sands. You are only eight pounds under weight, and nowadays it is the proper thing to be thankful you are underweight, instead of overweight, and especially in a bathing suit. Besides the season's bathing suits have variety enough to take care of all of us, be we thin or inclined to heft. Swim and put more weight on! The perspiration remedy I will send you gladly in return for stamped, addressed envelope; also the weight gaining instructions.

Society and Entertainments

Quiet Patriotism at Country Clubs for July Fourth

THE chief social activity of this week will be that at the country clubs about the city, where there will be specially arranged programs for the Fourth. One of the features of the day at almost every club will be a benefit of some sort for the Red Cross, as Independence day is pretty sure as a particularly fitting time for making contributions to the national war relief organization.

At Glenwild club in Lake Forest there will be special golf games, tennis matches, and a dinner dance in the evening. Glen View club has planned an elaborate list of events, many of them for the children, including a parade, a flag raising and salute, a merry go round, and dances.

At the Birchwood Country club there will be a basket picnic supper, with dancing in the afternoon and evening; the Edgewater Golf club will have a "liberty tournament," and at the Chicago Yacht club the day will be "celebrated befittingly but without unseemly noise or unbecoming 'amusements,'" according to the announcement sent to members. There will be music and dancing there from 2 o'clock until midnight.

Festivities at the South Shore Country club will include trap shooting, tennis, golf, and swimming, with the formal opening of the bathing beach at the club. Charles J. Vopicka, United States minister to the Balkan states, will deliver an address on "The Latest News from the War Zone." There will be a dinner dance in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Patten of 1426 Ridge avenue, Evanston, will have a meeting at their home this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the interest of the war work of the national board of the Young Women's Christian association, when addresses will be made by members of the board and others. Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel C. Sears of Lake Geneva, Wis., will hold a similar meeting at their home, Glenfern farm, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Spaulding of 3334 Woodlawn avenue left on Saturday for their summer home at Powers Lake, Wis.

Some of those who will sing this summer at Ravinia park have taken homes in north shore suburbs and have brought with them friends to live for the season. Miss Florence Macbeth and her mother have taken a cottage at Glencoe; Mme. Carolina White will have her private home in Highland Park; Miss Edith Mason will live in Glencoe; Marguerite Beriza will live in Highland Park, and Frances Ingram and Irene Pavlowska will motor back and forth from Chicago. The dances which are given in the park pavilion before the performance and during the intermissions are proving popular with the society people who attend the operas.

Begin Move for American Opera

New York, July 1.—A concerted movement by American composers and dramatists and leaders of national, civic, and musical organizations for the production of American opera and other native music in the English tongue will be formally launched here tomorrow.

While the offices will be in New York, the incorporators represent all sections of the country.

Reginald de Koven, the composer, is chairman of the committee of organization, its members including Mrs. David Allen Campbell, Chicago; Charles W. Coleman, San Francisco; John Alden Carpenter, Chicago; George W. Chadwick, Boston; Frederick S. Converse, Boston; Arthur Farwell, New York; Mrs. W. A. Hinckle, Peoria, Ill.; Percy MacKaye, New York; Douglas Mallock, Chicago; Max Rabinoff, New York; Mrs. Frank A. Seiberling, Akron, O.; Leo Stukey, New York; John Philip Sousa, New York; and David Stevens, New York.

The announced policy is to produce throughout the United States operatic works by American composers and dramatists only, acted and sung by an all-American company, with an all-American orchestra, chorus, and ballet.

For "Table" Slackers.

What shall a woman do with a husband who in these precarious days refuses to eat what is set before him and ask no questions? A speaker addressing housewives' league, proposes a new remedy for any "slacker" who will not cheerfully help his wife economize. "Let him starve," she says.

Men are traditionally prone to find fault at the table, and in less sophisticated households there may still be wives who marry to please them. But this kind of thing is distinctly out of date. "Let the graceless wretch take what he can get and be thankful for it!" the speaker concludes.

SOCIETY IN THE EAST

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—Mrs. Daniel D. Mangam of Greenwich, Conn., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Doris Talmadge Mangam, to Coleman B. MacGovern, son of Mrs. James MacGovern of 326 West Seventy-sixth street. Miss Mangam is a granddaughter of the late Rev. T. De Witt Talmadge. No arrangements have been made for the wedding.

In the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth avenue, Saturday afternoon, Miss Eugenia Bogart Townsend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Townsend of 850 Seventh avenue, became the wife of H. Francis Miles of Walton, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Duke, who passed the early summer at their country estate in Somerville, N. J., have gone to Newport, R. I., and will occupy their villa there until late in the autumn.

The wedding of Miss M. Civilius Alexandre, daughter of Mrs. John E. Alexandre of 16 East Fifty-second street, and Frederic Schenck, son of Mrs. J. Frederick Schenck, was celebrated Saturday afternoon in Lenox, Mass., at the country home of the bride's mother.

At the home of Mrs. Edward Winslow Packard, in Greenwich, Conn., Saturday afternoon and evening a fête champetre was given for the benefit of the fatherless children of France. A feature was the presentation of an allegory, "Humanity." Associated with Mrs. Packard in the management of the fête were Mrs. Percy A. Rockefeller, Mrs. William G. Rockefeller and a number of other women prominent in society and charitable circles.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Berwind have closed their town house, at 2 East Sixty-fourth street, and are at Newport, R. I., where they will remain for the summer.

Miss Dorothy B. Gifford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Gifford of Tarrytown, N. Y., was married Saturday afternoon at Tarrytown to Chessman Kittredge. Mr. Kittredge is a son of William Richard Kittredge of Boston.

Mrs. John R. Drexel, Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff and Lady Aberdeen are among the patronesses for the concert and dance which will be given for the benefit of King's college hospital, London, on the evening of July 12 at the Hotel Majestic. A number of well known artists will take part in the concert.

MARRIAGES

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Doris Webb Schrader to Dr. Thomas A. Broadbent.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Margaret Willy Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Roberts of Oak Park, to Howard S. Drew of Evanston. The mother of the bride was matron of honor and Robert Drew was his brother's best man.

Kills "Onion Breath."

If a sprig of parsley is dipped in vinegar and eaten after an onion no unpleasant odor from the breath can be detected.

"Prevention" Is Held Watchword of Camp Morals

"PREVENTION is the watchword," said Miss Louise Holmquist at the meeting of a group of Y. W. C. A. workers and members of the national defense committees yesterday afternoon held on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick in Lake Forest. "It is the innocent, hero-worshiping little girls of high school age to whom the military camps and training stations are a serious danger and who are an equal menace to the men and boys in the camps.

"Of course I go to the barracks every Sunday," one pretty little girl told a Y. W. C. A. secretary. "Why, those men are heroes. Sometimes I think I would almost lay down my life for them."

Miss Holmquist told of the Hospitality Hut erected at the training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., where the boys and girls may have all the wholesome fun their hearts desire, and pleaded the crying need for the same thing in every training camp in Illinois.

"The boys get homesick and blue and hungry for the good times they had at home. No wonder things go wrong under abnormal conditions. Protection for the girls means protection for the boys. Fun, and the right kind, is the big need."

Miss Martha McCooke of New York, through whose efforts and enthusiasm have sprung some about the success of the Y. W. C. A. in the camps in that state, also was one of the speakers.

"The abnormal numbers of men in the camps and the abnormal numbers of girls pressing into the munition factories have created the great necessity for the cooperation of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A's. And this is not the problem of Plattsburg alone, or Oglethorpe, or MacPherson. It is the problem of America."

"A military uniform is just as wonderful to the high school girls in Illinois as in New York."

C. M. Whitehair, secretary of the International Y. M. C. A., who has just returned from recruiting camps in Europe, told of his experiences there, and emphasized the urgent need of preserving the moral and physical health of the men.

The last speaker was Dr. Yarros of Hull House, who pleaded for the girls of Illinois especially. Tea was served on the north porch of Mrs. McCormick's beautiful home before the guests departed.

Miss Jessie Binford of the Juvenile Protective association, which has been investigating conditions since the early part of May, pointed out Saturday that although orders have been given that liquor is not to be sold to men in United States uniforms, men in uniform are provided with it by civilians, who buy the drinks and carry them to the "boys."

"Already," says Miss Binford, "we find also that the soldiers are going to what they call 'can houses,' where they can get liquor without being observed, and on the evening of June 23 liquor was openly sold to soldiers and sailors in the ballroom of one of the amusement parks.

"On Saturday night a 14 year old girl was brought to the detention home. Margaret had been in the juvenile court, but was on probation to do housework. On Thursday, when she had her day off, she went to one of the amusement parks. There she and another girl met three sailors, who gave them a 'good' time. They started home about 11:30, but before they got off the grounds Margaret was attacked by two of the sailors.

"There is a law to provide punishment for this sort of crime and it must be enforced. And our fighting men must be protected from the solicitations of prostitutes and runners for disorderly houses."

Cooks and their employers will meet in Lake Forest at 4:30 today to make plans for the big massmeetings of cooks to be held all over the city in the interest of conservation. Mrs. Hopewell Rogers, Miss Ethel Gleason, and Mrs. Ottyla Myrhman are among those who are sponsoring the Lake Forest affair. On the same day at 5 p. m. a committee of cooks will meet at the headquarters of the woman's committee, 120 West Adams street, to arrange for Chicago massmeetings.

Volunteers interested in taking training as teachers of English to non-English speaking women are asked to meet Miss Mary McDowell at the Chicago College club in the Stevens building tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Tuesday—Executive committee, 10 a. m., in the board room; conservation committee, 3 p. m., in the board room; committee on women and children in industry, 2:30 p. m., library.

Thursday—Publicity committee, at 3 p. m., in the board room.

Wartime Gayety at Lake Forest

Youth's joy of life illumines even the war cloud hanging over Lake Forest and at Onwentsia. The Saturday evening's dance had something of pre-wartime gayety. Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. King held the center of the stage and dining room with a party of fourteen young people, most of the men in khaki. Mr. and Mrs. Leverett Thompson had ten or twelve guests. Miss Grace Tuttle had a party of eight, Wayne Chatfield Taylor was host to a small party including his fiancé, Miss Adele Blow.

The men at Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey's table were in navy uniforms. The young married set were entertained by Mrs. Jay M. Ely and were a party with lots of dash and style. Mrs. A. A. Carpenter gathered around her a company composed largely of familiar Lake Forest faces.

Among the others giving dinners were Mrs. Charles Adsit, Mrs. Henry Hollis, and Mrs. William L. Fiske. In all the dining room held about 100 guests. The dancing was on the dancing platform under the trees, and the company was augmented by those bringing guests from dinners at private houses.

Miss Lolita Armour entertained with her usual Saturday evening dinner for cohryo officers from Fort Sheridan.

Among the diners and dancers were Mr. and Mrs. C. G. King, A. A. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey, Leverett Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. William Clow, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gade, Mr. and Mrs. Jay M. Ely, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Uihlein, Miss Lolita Armour, Miss Genevra King, Miss Adele Blow, Miss Edith Cummings, Miss Polly Chase, Miss Courtney Letts, Miss Margaret Carey, Miss Grace Tuttle, Miss Elisabeth Adsit, Miss Helen Farwell and Farwell Winston, Allaston McCormick, Alexander McKinlock, Paul Martin, Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, William Fuller, and Knight Cowles.

Egyptian Club Picnic.

The Egyptian club of Chicago, composed of those formerly living in southern Illinois, will hold its seventeenth annual picnic July 4, 1917, in the grove southwest of the conservatory in Washington park. The entrance is Fifty-seventh street from Cottage Grove avenue cars. The place will be designated by a large American flag and Egyptian club pennant.

There will be plenty of seats, lemonade, short speeches for the old, games for the young, with prizes for the winners. Luncheon will be spread at 1 o'clock and games will commence at 2:30.

The old Olney club, of which the late Prof. Carnes was president, is expected to join.

The Successful Home Garden.

BY J. F. H. HEIDE.

No. 197.

TRANSPLANT NOW: Early red cabbage as "catch crop," flavor cabbage, self-blanching and green celery, summer endive, bokhara, head lettuce, and rutabagas.

PLANT LICE OR APHIDS, ONCE MORE.

Green or black plant lice or aphids are, as the food of inquiries indicates, the chief garden pest at this time. We are impelled therefore to elaborate once more on the topic of May 7, No. 13. So far they have infested principally the cabbage family, spinach, currants, gooseberries, grapes, fruit trees, and shrubbery. They will now spread to tomatoes, roses, ash—in fact, the tender young leaves of practically all plants, particularly the herbaceous, are apt to curl up under their attack at this time. They suck out the plant juices and destroy, or at least injure the young growth. They are slowly moving insects, the size of a pinhead, in shades of green or black, and are born alive by a small fly throughout the growing season.

The most effective remedy is a thorough spraying with tobacco extract, which must come in actual contact with them; repeating as often as their reappearance warrants through the season. The use of pure nicotine is not advisable, as it is highly volatile. Treated with sulfuric acid, it no longer evaporates; hence, this is the most economical form if used in quantities. "Black Leaf 40" is so treated, can be bought at reliable seed houses, with printed directions affixed. For the small garden or home yard, dilute, on an average, one liquid ounce in about eight gallons of water, dissolving in it about two ounces of laundry soap to cause it to spread and stick better. On a larger scale, three-fourths pint in 100 gallons water and four pounds of soap.

Spray preferably on a calm, cloudy day—on small grounds, about sundown. It may be rinsed off the following morning with a garden hose, spray nozzle, and clear water. The rinsing is necessary on eatables as nicotine is poisonous.

An effective tobacco extract for home use may be made by soaking a 5 cent package of smoking tobacco in a quart of covered warm water for twenty-four hours. The residue is carefully strained out that the sprayer may not become clogged, and the liquid saved as stock solution in a tightly corked bottle. This is diluted, as used, with three parts clear water.

The "Black Leaf 40" may also be combined with other sprays, as "bordeaux mixture, making one operation of it.

Apply with a one gallon atomizer [$1 to $1.50], a five gallon knapsack sprayer [$6.25 to $6.75], or a large wheeled sprayer, directing the spray upward under the leaves into the individual leaves already curled and into the folds.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q.—Each year about the last of June, a long black beetle eats circular holes in the leaves of our Swiss chard. The growth continues luxuriant, but we cannot bring ourselves to using the partly eaten leaves and fear to use poisonous compounds. It has not yet appeared this year, but what can be done to forestall it?—Mrs. J. E. F.

Ans.—Only poison (spraying, arsenate of lead) will effectively stop the depredations of chewing insects. The only remedy under the circumstances is to build a frame around the bed fifteen inches high, stretch cheese cloth over it and pin it to the ground, leaving no entrance for the beetles. The objection to eating the mutilated leaves is merely an aesthetic one.

Ans.—They are probably pea aphids, which suck out the plant juices and destroy the vines. The immediate remedy is to walk along the row on a dry, hot day and brush them with pine boughs, another following behind with a cultivator or hoe. Repeat every three to seven days. The permanent remedy is to rotate crops, cultivate thoroughly, and plant early.

ONE OF THESE SLOGANS MAY WIN $50 PRIZE

Robert Ritt's naval poster, now adorning THE TRIBUNE'S signboard at Michigan boulevard and Randolph street and executed by him for the purpose of inspiring enlistments in the navy, has been the inspiration for hundreds of slogans submitted to the $50 prize contest.

Some New Ones.

Ralph N. Neumann, 3646 Wrightwood avenue—"Come forward, every man, and do the best you can." Set to music.

S. H. Hejnack, 5154 South Artesian avenue—"Join the peacemakers."

Walter Degen, 5909 Calumet avenue—"Not yellow, but true blue."

F. J. Minweegen, 1760 Granville avenue—"We have petitioned, we have remonstrated, we have supplicated. Now let us fight."

Harrison Brown, 5881 South State street—"We'll be there, on land and water and in the air, with men and muskets everywhere; we'll be there."

Thomas A. Oakes, 1112 West Thirty-fifth street—"Let us give our bodies for our souls' desire."

And Some Others.

John Fogarty, 1236 Penn street—"Enlist now, for the price of peace is war."

R. J. Hilman, 2118 Evergreen avenue—"Be a man. Follow us to victory and Germany."

George Palmer, 4527 North Sacramento avenue—"U must go to save the others. U and they must stand like brothers."

J. L. McKnight, 7320 Union avenue—"R is Liberty's call. Enlist. Why wait? Shall a kaiser rule the United States?"

ILLINOIS GAVE TO RED CROSS 88 CTS. PER PERSON

Washington, D. C., July 1.—Latest tabulations by the American Red Cross, announced tonight, show that Delaware led all other states in per capita contributions to the Red Cross war fund, with a rate of $5. Figures for other states follow:

Nebraska	.50	Hawaii	.03

NO "QUITTERS."

Members of the Red Cross club of Roscoe street are undaunted by the failure of Chicago to raise $5,000,000 during Red Cross week. They have sent the following letter to THE TRIBUNE:

"Dear Sirs: We have started a Red Cross club. One day when I was away and came home, one of the members of our Club had started a Lemonade Stand. That day we earned $3.01. Elizabeth Albrecht the Treasure thought of the stand. President Dorothy Jenkins, 827 Roscoe St. City—Treasure Elizabeth Albrecht 827 Roscoe St. Other members of the club—Gertrude Davis 827 Roscoe St. Helen Albrecht 827 Roscoe St. [illegible] we took no notice of it. We are going to have other things and if needed will send it in.

Thanking you,

We are

Declare New Bills Will Cut Rate of Fifteen Thefts a Day.

No more is the youth who "takes" an automobile which he finds standing at a curb, and who is caught at it, to get off with a reprimand on a joyriding plea. Edwin B. Bodley, attorney for the Chicago Automobile Trade association, explained yesterday that he who makes away with an automobile is riding to a fall.

"We failed to get the law through the legislature which would mean a penalty of from five to twenty years for the auto thief," said Mr. Bodley, "but we made good gains in our fight for laws which will stop the stealing of cars.

New Laws Help.

"Last week Gov. Lowden signed two bills which will help materially. They are effective at once, I understand. One of these makes it a misdemeanor to tamper with a car standing at a curb. The other makes it a misdemeanor to have in one's possession a car on which the numbers have been 'jimmied.' The penalty for this is a fine of $100 or six months in jail.

"Automobile stealing has become one of the most successful of criminal industries. In the past it has been difficult to convict a man or boy caught in the act of driving a machine away. If arrested before he got away the defense was that he hadn't stolen anything.

Loophole Closed.

"He might have tried, and failure was the only reason he didn't, but nevertheless he had not stolen. The motor tampering bill closes up this loophole. It is going to take the joy out of joyriding in other people's cars.

"Chicago has been averaging about fifteen cars stolen each day, almost all by boys. Some are professional thieves, making a business of turning over the cars to the real crooks who deal in stolen automobiles. Their rewards are very small—too small to pay them with the new risks and probable jail sentences under the new law. We feel that we are closing in on them."

STATE ARMS TO FIGHT SOLDIER TUBERCULOSIS

Springfield, Ill., July 1.—[Special.]—The temporary appointment of Dr. George Thomas Palmer as assistant director of the state department of public health, made by Gov. Lowden on Saturday, completes the organization through which the state of Illinois and the state council of defense hope to protect Illinois troops from the ravages of tuberculosis experienced by the European armies.

The program has as its principal features:

The making of a tuberculosis census of the state.

Placing at the disposal of the recruiting officers a list of all male citizens of military age who, through expoedre or past history, are possibly tuberculous.

The establishment of tuberculosis dispensaries, visiting nursing service and sanitarium facilities in each county for the uses of returned soldiers and the civil population.

Development of a large force of physicians and nurses especially trained to deal with the tuberculosis problem.

It is probable that the dispensary and nursing service of the Springfield Tuberculosis association, with which Dr. Palmer has been identified for the last seven years, will be utilized as a training station for physicians and nurses in connection with eight such training stations in Chicago.

Shoots Brother-in-Law.

Sam Ostrantvene and Sylvester De Lozzo, his brother-in-law, could not agree as to who should pay for lumber to repair their barn at 2156 De Kalb street. Sylvester shot twice, wounding Ostrantvene in the shoulder and thigh, and escaped. The West Thirteenth street police, who answered the call, took the wounded man to the county hospital. His condition is not serious.

DECEMBER CORN SCORES UPTURN ON DRY WEATHER

Southwest Reports Less Favorable; Cash Grain Premiums Strong.

Strong cash markets for corn with less favorable reports from the southwest were the main stimulating features on the buying side of the market last week. Exporters continue to bid high prices for corn, and apparently are unable to buy enough to satisfy their requirements. Stocks at Chicago and other visible supply points have not increased a great deal during the period of heavy receipts, and from now arrivals are expected to be moderate until after harvest at least. Country reports reflect a cleaning up of old stocks at many points.

Cash prices showed a little easier tone at one time, but later firmed up again in spite of the fact that some of the leading buyers were out of the market. Washington reports indicate there will be no restrictions placed on trading in corn and oats either for cash or future contracts, and as a ruling of this intimation there was increased confidence on the part of the bulls.

Maximum Prices Effective.

Maximum prices on all months are still in effect as placed by the different exchanges, and so far there is no intention of changing them.

With high premiums for cash corn in all positions there is not much probability of there being any corn delivered on either July or September contracts, and the situation in this respect is abnormal. Both export and domestic demand for corn has been active, except for a few days, and there has been no increase in farm marketings, as the general country sentiment is bullish. Farmers having sold the bulk of their surplus are now disposed to wait crop developments before selling much more.

Large Acreage Indicated.

The July government report is expected to confirm high acreage estimates, but the gain may be not so great as expected early, as much replanting was necessary in many sections, and in the south it is said the acreage may fall down a little. The crop generally is regarded as a week or two late, but not enough late to prevent seasonable maturing of the crop if weather conditions are favorable. In the big surplus states, with the exception of Kansas, the crop has had ample moisture. In the southwest, including part of Kansas, most of Oklahoma, and northern Texas, dry, hot weather has caused some anxiety and rain is unquestionably badly needed.

Foreign use of corn is increasing and the demand from neutral countries especially is big. High prices for live stock also tend to make feeding profitable. Receipts will have little corn for export, but ocean room with passage shipments from the Argentine and Russia probably would be light for a long time to come.

Oats Buying Call Active.

In oats there has been persistent and steady accumulation of the July by leading commission houses. This buying has hardened prices and the deferred months have been stronger as well, influenced by corn and by decreasing stocks. The supply of oats now in store is small, and with the late season there is little prospect of many new oats reaching the terminal markets during July. With receipts small during the month and stocks near exhaustion, with the high prices for corn and other cereals, there has been less pressure on the market, while commission houses have taken considerable quantities of futures.

The general crop outlook for oats is favorable, but the crop promise is believed to be represented by the present level of prices, which is low compared to other grains, and in consequence there has been better buying support from commission houses.

Wheat Trade Dwindling.

In wheat the trade has dwindled to small proportions, and it is expected the government will take over complete control of the distribution of the crop, which will mean the elimination of future trading for the present at least, and probably for the duration of the war. In consequence of the unsettled conditions there has been little new cash trade. Buyers are not inclined to make contracts until it becomes known definitely what the government plans are to be, and there his been little hedging. Premiums have worked a little lower here, and in the northwest there was a sharp decline. Readjustment to new crop basis is expected to be gradual. Export trade is quiet and the government will control all exports both to allies and to neutrals.

In provisions most of the selling pressure has been on the lard, of which stocks are large. Shippers have been good buyers of ribs, and the southern trade has been of fair proportions. Hog receipts for the week were 502,600, against 461,000 a year ago. Cash trade is quiet as a rule and the failure of the Belgian relief to make the usual purchases put a damper on trade to some extent.

New Plant for Chicago Packers.

Fond du Lac, Wis., July 1.—(Special.)—Announcement was made here yesterday that Libby, McNeill & Libby, packers, of Chicago, had purchased a site for a condensary at Rosendale and will erect a plant to cost $50,000, to be in operation by Dec. 1. Work has been started on a $200,000 plant at Waupun, where cans used to take care of the Wisconsin product, will be manufactured.

Autoist Races with Train; Dies.

Webster City, Ia., July 1.—(Special.)—Racing his auto for a crossing at Blairsburg, Louis Carmelin of Woolstock struck the Illinois Central west bound fast mail train this afternoon. His car was caught on the fender of the engine. Carmelin was brought to Mercy hospital in this city, terribly injured, and died shortly afterward. Leon Paquet, who was in the auto with Carmelin, escaped with slight injuries.

Federal Land Bank

4½% Farm Loan Bonds

Dated May 1, 1917 — Due May 1, 1937

Issued by the Banks under the direction and control of the Federal Farm Loan Board, a Bureau of the Treasury Department of the United States Government

Redeemable at par and accrued interest on any interest date after five years from date of issue.

Coupon bonds exchangeable for registered bonds, which in turn are re-exchangeable for coupon bonds. Denominations, $1,000, $500, $100, $50 and $25.

Interest payable semi-annually, May 1st and November 1st, at any Federal Land Bank. Principal payable at the Bank of Issue. Both principal and interest payable in gold or lawful currency.

(Arrangements have been made for the payment of November coupons at the Federal Reserve Banks, which arrangements are expected to be made permanent.)

EXEMPT FROM FEDERAL, STATE, MUNICIPAL AND LOCAL TAXATION.

Under authority of Act of Congress approved July 17, 1916, the United States was divided into 12 districts and a Federal Land Bank was created in each district. Farm loan bonds are primarily the obligation of the bank issuing the same. All twelve banks, however, are ultimately liable for the payment of each bond.

The United States Government owns over $8,800,000 of the original issue of $9,000,000 of capital stock of these banks. The banks operate under Federal authority and Governmental supervision.

The bonds themselves are declared by the Act to be "instrumentalities of the Government of the United States." The extent to which the good faith and credit of the United States are pledged to the support of these obligations is evidenced by the foregoing and also by the letter of the Secretary of the Treasury and the opinion of former Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Hughes, on file at our offices.

As security for these bonds, there are pledged either United States Government bonds or guaranteed first mortgages on farm lands cultivated by the owner. No mortgage loan may exceed one-half the value of the land mortgaged, and one-fifth of the value of permanent insured improvements thereon as confirmed in both cases by Farm Loan Board appraisers.

The principal and interest of these bonds are exempt from United States, State, municipal and local taxation. This includes the Federal Income Tax and income from these bonds need not be included in Income Tax Returns.

In Europe, farm loan bonds of this same general character have long been a favorite form of investment selling at approximately the same prices as direct Government obligations.

The bonds are acceptable at par by the United States Treasury as Security for Government deposits including Postal Savings deposits.

The Attorney General of the United States on behalf of the Government, and the Hon. Charles E. Hughes, acting on our behalf, have approved the constitutionality of the Act and the validity of the provisions exempting the bonds from taxation.

After a thorough study of the provisions of the Act creating the above bonds, the methods and policies followed by the Farm Loan Board in the establishment and supervision of the system and the security afforded by the bonds themselves we recommend them as a safe and attractive investment.

Price 101½ and Accrued Interest netting about 4.17% to the redeemable date (1922) and 4.42% so long as they may remain outstanding thereafter.

RISK MEN MEET M'ADOO TODAY IN WASHINGTON

Insurance of Soldiers on Firing Line to Be Discussed.

BY C. M. CARTWRIGHT.

Much interest is being taken by life insurance companies in the conference that will be held in Washington, D. C., this afternoon between officials of the companies and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. The United States government has been considering plans for insuring lives of officers and men who go into military service and are sent abroad. Last week Secretary McAdoo sent a call to all the leading life insurance companies in the United States asking them to send representatives to this meeting.

The life insurance companies have all adopted war clauses of some form or other providing for extra premiums and special conditions governing the coverage of policies in case the holder enters military service. The insurance commissioners and representatives of some of the life insurance companies met some weeks ago in New York and decided on a war clause requiring an extra premium of $37.50 per thousand dollars, but this has been accepted by but few of the companies.

Companies' Wants Differ.

Some companies do not desire to charge an extra premium while the men are in camp on this side. Others want to charge more than $37.50, and still others have particular conditions of their own that they wish to follow. But few will take aviators or those entering submarine service, and they charge such high premiums that make the insurance practically prohibitive.

As insurance companies get complete statistics from Canadian and British headquarters as to war mortality, they feel they are being confronted by a condition that is unprecedented, as it may involve the entire body of policyholders. Men entering the service, therefore, have found it impossible to get insurance at anything like normal rates.

The government has felt the need of adopting some plan of its own, inasmuch as many men desire some form of life insurance protection. Some officers of life insurance companies seem to think that the pension system is the best for the dependents of military men and that the government is making a mistake in launching into the life insurance project.

Most life insurance companies of the central west will be represented in Washington today, as they feel that the movement inaugurated by the government is a most important one and will have a vital effect in the future on insuring men in military pursuits. Whether the federal government will take up the subject of insuring soldiers and sailors against disability caused by wounds or disease is not known. There has been considerable talk in accident insurance circles to the effect that this may be done. Accident companies do not cover the hazard of war.

Legislation Decreases.

The report of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents on legislation indicates that there was quite a decrease during this legislative session in the number of bills pertaining to life insurance, although there was an increase in the volume of statutes. Actuary J. J. Brinkerhoff of the association sees an apparent change in the legislative attitude toward life insurance, especially as more policy holders are becoming interested in life insurance measures, seeing how they themselves are affected. He believes that the life insurance companies have accomplished much in educational effort by showing the policy holders that hostile legislative measures are directed at them and no one else.

"Not Taken Policies."

Life insurance companies will soon take steps to reduce the great loss that comes from policy holders holding policies frequently as long as thirty or forty-five days and turning them in without paying any premium.

BOSTON COPPER NEWS.

An official of the Greene-Cananea Copper company says he doubts correctness of dispatches from Mexico attributing pretty generally to the agency of Mexican consuls to the department of State against Cananea Consolidated, the operating company of which Cananea, as the company is called, has always kept entirely within the mining laws of Mexico.

Statements purporting to have been given out by Secretary Mielo state Cananea Consolidated Copper company has failed to pay taxes on 7,703 mining claims, which pay taxes of $7,703 each, and owing to the Mexican government, had moved machinery across the border closed up its hospital, and closed its property.

It is true, the company has abandoned these 7,703 mining claims. This was done in accordance with laws of Mexico and followed inauguration of the high rates under which it will be necessary for many years to pay taxes on mining claims constitutes an abandonment of all rights, and there is no provision in the law calling for any specific notification to the government. The company has paid taxes on all claims retained.

Last April a representative of the stamp tax office and the principal administrator of the tax at Nogales conferred with officials of the company in Nogales. Nothing further was heard until June 12, when Secretary Mielo telegraphed that if the taxes (which should have been due if the claims had not been abandoned) were not paid within fifteen days the right to export bullion would be withdrawn. As it was impossible to operate if the company was not permitted to export bullion, this was, it is alleged, illegal and arbitrary action, it was decided to cease operations before the date set.

As to the other charges, the official says: "As to the other charge that the company secretly sent out some of the machinery nor in the charge that the hospital was closed and patients ejected. The company has left its own physician and staff in charge of hospital patients, and the local Mexican officials arrested them and put a Mexican physician in charge, but the 'defections' reported the American physician and attendants and they now are in charge of the hospital under direction of a Mexican agent."

WOMEN'S WEAR.

While a good part of the silk lonnage for fall has been contracted for, no dominant note in designs has yet appeared. This, according to the silk men, is rather unusual in the trade. So far the garment manufacturers and the retail trade have contented themselves with taking a variety of patterns, including stripes, checks, floral effects and geometric figures. Among the silk manufacturers it is believed that while the variety of designs and colors of these styles in the middle and end of the period will give a run to plain colors. The demand on plain dark shades is showing increasing strength as the season goes on.

Stoles have been particularly desired for summer wear by the wealthier women, many of them running up to three yards in length and carrying deep fringe ends. For this the most part these stoles have not been lined with silk, the fur itself being relied on to give the desired richness of effect. Combination collar and stole effects are now taking well here, these being from twenty-six to twenty-eight inches in width and seventy-five to ninety inches in length. Most of these are made with hand slashes. They are shown in such furs as ermine, Hudson seal, muskrats, mink, and pedinsky.

We offer a selected list of

IOWA MUNICIPAL BONDS

Municipal securities are held in high favor by the conservative investor, and especially so in times of stress.

The fact that they are tax exempt under the Federal Income Tax Law, and that no declaration need be made of one's holdings adds to their desirability.

May we send you our list?

Lighten Punishment of Police Captains

The city civil service commission Saturday lightened its punishment of Police Capts. Thomas F. Cronin, Thomas J. Caughlin, and James O'Toole, who were found guilty of neglect of duty last year in connection with the slot machine investigation. Capt. Cronin, who was given a thirty days' suspension and fined ten days' pay, was ordered suspended ten days and fined five days' pay; Capt. Caughlin was ordered fined fifteen days' pay and suspended ten, instead of a fine and suspension of thirty days each, and Capt. O'Toole, suspended thirty days, was ordered suspended seven. Chief of Police Schuettler sent out the order last night.
